Sanitary district can't serve Odello

By ROBERT MISKIMON

REGARDLESS of the outcome of the latest challenge by the city of Carmel to the Carmel Valley Master Plan, the Carmel Sanitary District can not provide sewage treatment services to the proposed 162-unit Rancho Odello development.

The proposed Odello development is included within the jurisdiction of the Carmel Valley Master Plan, and special counsel Alexander Herison was to argue in Monterey County Superior Court today (Nov. 29) that the environmental impact report for the plan is inadequate.

No development which requires issuance of discretionary building permits has been allowed in Carmel Valley since the Carmel Valley Master Plan was suspended by Judge Silver in 1980 in response to a lawsuit by the city of Carmel over environmental concerns.

At the Nov. 15 meeting of the Carmel Sanitary District Board of Directors, Manager Michael Zambory informed the board that the district can not provide sewage services to all pending projects within its jurisdiction — including the Odello development — without an increase in discharge capacity from the California Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The sanitary district, however, has a contractual obligation to provide sewage treatment services to the Odello development "upon request," according to Zambory.

The Carmel treatment plant, which is licensed by the state to discharge 214 million gallons per day, will have a daily capacity of only 6,600 gallons left if several projects proceed as planned, Zambory informed the board.

"The Odello east project requires 44,000 gallons per day," he wrote in a memo to directors. "If the pending projects all develop as proposed, we will only have 6,600 gpd remaining. Therefore, we can not serve the Odello east development at this time."

The other projects to which Zambory referred include the Carmel River Inn, which would require 5,405 gpd; the Mission Ranch, 7,835 gpd; High Meadow II, 28,670 gpd; and Mahroom subdivision, 8,460.

Although those projects are not included within the Carmel Valley Master Plan, they are in the unincorporated area surrounding Carmel and within the service area of the sanitary district. Permissive zoning for those projects is included in the Carmel Area Local

Who needs hotels?

Dear Editor:

I thought that our coastline would be protected from the developers who have swooped down on the whole peninsula coast. Almost no one is doing anything to stop them and yet most residents are opposed to this desecration of the land.

Who needs these hotels and developments in Big Sur and in Carmel Valley? These new projects are definitely not being built to improve our area, and yet that is all we read about in the newspapers. They are always "improving" something which should be left alone. Point Lobos should be left just as it is and that hotel should not be allowed. The hotel for the El Sur estate should not be allowed. And the Ventana Hotel should not have been built at all.

As you can see, the hotels are here to stay, and they have it so good that the international hotel developers are now moving in to completely screw up our lives and this environment. All of the land near the coast should have been declared for public lands a long time ago so that it could be preserved for posterity. The Big Sur coast should be a refuge to get away from hotels.

Don't close Lincoln

Dear Editor:

May I add my words of strong opposition to the plan under consideration which would cut Lincoln Street in half — or cut off access to it — in the process (proposed) of adding on to the present Harrison Memorial Library building.

To disturb that beautiful city treasure with the wrecking of walls, incurring dust and disorder, and unwholesome environment for the library staff for many months — is this really preferable to utilizing the first plan of building across the street and using the plans for the handsome structure long since design-

Granted that we need more room in our library: nobody disputes that reality. Anyone who has seen the original plans for the annex will surely conclude that they would provide for ample room to house the children's department and reference division in a structure entirely harmonious with the present library.

If additional funds are needed, I am sure that thousands of patrons would respond to an appeal for them, rather than see the present library building mutilated.

Protect public access

Dear Editor:

I attended one of the public hearings on the development plans for Spanish Bay, and my impression of the supervisors is based on the fact that I have dedicated a lot of work toward saving the open space of Spanish Bay.

I resented the insulting remark by one of the pro-development supervisors that categorized all of Spanish Bay as a garbage dump. This person must really be some kind of a perverted lover of concrete and asphalt.

The only garbage dump he should condemn is the Mickey Mouse proceedings to approve the Spanish Bay hotel, condominiums and another doggone golf course. These supervisors are a so-called public agency and yet they make every effort to avoid the public criticism of the Spanish Bay construction plans.

Most residents of the Monterey Peninsula are obviously opposed to developing Spanish Bay, and the supervisors are aware of this. It is a good thing for our peninsula that two of these politicians are leaving their public offices, hopefully to remain in private enterprise where they belong.

Since there is a remote possibility that we may lose the open space of Spanish Bay, I have an alternative plan for acquiring more open space for public use. Since the coast of Pebble Beach is public property, there isn't really any good reason why it should be controlled in any way separately from the rest of the coast of California.

The public should have unlimited access to the coast of Pebble Beach and to Stillwater Cove. We should also establish public access routes into the forests of Del Monte Forest because these open spaces are hardly used now, and the law is written to maximize public use of the land. That is the rationale for approving the "visitor-serving facilities" in Spanish Bay. And the gates will become unnecessary.

Lincoln closure 'unfair'

Dear Editor:

As a frequent visitor to Carmel, where I maintain weekend and vacation housing. I would like to express my opposition to the permanent closure of Lincoln Street for the purpose of expanding the library into the middle of that street.

I understand that three vacant lots were purchased about four years ago on Lincoln, to the north of the present library parking lot, for the purpose of building an annex to the library. What is going to happen to these? Are Carmel residents and library patrons going to have a vote on this, or is the city council making these decisions without consulting the voters?

I happened to be spending the weekend in Carmel during the temporary closure of Lincoln Street, heard nothing but unfavorable comments about it from other visitors. Expanding the library into that street would necessitate tearing up the street, having jackhammer noise for months, and preventing fire and police vehicles and delivery trucks from ever using the street.

It is a completely unfair idea to the people of Carmel, to the shop owners affected, and to us, the regular visitors. Along with most of the residents, I urge that the library annex be constructed on the lots purchased for that purpose.

Cite dog owners

Dear Editor:

After reading recent letters pertaining to canines' rights in Carmel, specifically the articles of Sept. 20 by Mr. Pentony and Sept. 27 by Mr. August, I wholeheartedly support the latter.

I, too, am a proud property owner in the Hatton Fields area and, after leasing the property for the first year following its purchase, have become aware of problems relating to dogs since maintaining a full-time residence here. I find there is a growing number of dogs and a corresponding dislike of their presence, both on and off the beach.

My complaint is also with the owners who refuse to pick up after their animals but, more importantly, my complaint centers around the fact that many residents in my neighborhood are being plagued with the constant barking and baying of many of these animals often left unattended outside for hours.

We all appreciate the beauty of Carmel and the climate which affords year-round outdoor living, but nothing is more disturbing than having to listen to a canine chorus as one dog's barking triggers neighboring ones.

I like dogs, in fact I own two Great Danes which are fenced and require daily cleanup.

An end to supervisorial cynicism?

ONE CAN ONLY hope that the kind of high-handed attitude evidenced by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors toward environmental issues will change when two new members of that body are seated next month.

Last week, the board of supervisors continued discussion of a planning commission recommendation that Carmel Valley Ranch developers be required to provide more environmental information before the next phase of development at the 500-unit project proceeds.

But before the board acted, Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck of Salinas insulted and demeaned a planning staffer assigned to the project. And just the week before, supervisors undertook a cynical end-run around the latest legal challenge to the Carmel Valley Master Plan by the city of Carmel.

In the first instance, supervisors could not decide whether to side with Carmel Valley Ranch developers or the planning commission and staff — both of which called for a "focused" EIR on the fourth stage of development.

Supervisor Shipnuck of Salinas took it upon herself to castigate a staff member in a public meeting. Such demeanor brings no credit to the board of supervisors and tends to undermine the relationship between elected officials and staff.

And on Nov. 20, supervisors adopted 39 so-called "findings" as part of the EIR for the Carmel Valley Master Plan in a transparent attempt to blunt the latest legal challenge by the city of Carmel.

In its action, the city claims the EIR for the master plan does not sufficiently address all environmental concerns and is deficient in legal findings to support certification.

Despite the adoption of the language. Carmel special counsel Alexander Henson believes the EIR should be redistributed to the public for review and comment since many of the original comments were deleted by supervisors.

Action on the latest Carmel challenge is scheduled Nov. 29 in Monterey County Superior Court.

The point, of course, is that none of the legal challenges by the city of Carmel would have been needed in the first place if supervisors had developed the master plan in an environmentally-conscious manner, complete with a responsible EIR.

Both newly-elected Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman and Fourth District Supervisor Sam Karas have given indications of greater sensitivity to concerns of the public — particularly related to the environment than has a majority of the current board of supervisors.

It's hard to imagine either of them engaging in the kind of arrogance which unfortunately has characterized the board of supervisors for the last four years.

Additionally, if I knew these animals were causing any disturbance of the peace in the area by continually barking, I would take steps to curb it. I don't think it's too much to ask of anyone having a pet, or pets, to do the

As for Mrs. Pentony's statements regarding dogs on the beach: yes, they should be prohibited. It is not intended as a kennel. The human litter is inexcusable, but I'm afraid before we're able to exert some control over this problem with any meaningful enforcement, we have to at least begin with the humans who allow their animals to deposit litter and create noise pollution. I believe dog owners should be cited when violating either of the above.

Supports COMSAT plan

Dear Editor:

Monterey County is striving to create economic development in the county.

This is something that seems to be very much on people's minds. We read and hear about wanting to attract clean industry to the county as a means of providing jobs and as a means of providing a positive tax base. The COMSAT Jamesburg Earth Station is the perfect illustration of that type of industry. It demands very little public services, pays a tremendous amount of taxes and is a clean, non-polluting industry. It doesn't create traffic problems and it doesn't pollute ground water.

If the county discourages COMSAT, that is most likely going to discourage other clean non-polluting industries from knocking on the door of Monterey County.

As the owner of a small non-polluting enterprise in Monterey County, I enthusiastically support the proposed expansion of the COMSAT facility.

'Top priority' teachers

Dear Editor:

It is with great distress that we note consistently from year to year that our most important school resource, our teachers, are a low budget priority. Why is it that the school board comes down to the "eleventh hour" in reaching contract agreements? Why can't the teacher contracts be agreed upon shortly after June 30, rather than waiting until September when the teachers are attempting to devote full time to the classroom?

Our concern is in maintaining quality standards at our schools. This cannot be accomplished without the total dedication of our teachers. We have excellent teachers and they must be compensated fairly on a timely basis. The board should put them at the top of the priority list.

City will survey residents again on everything from parking to beach

By MICHAEL GARDNER

IN 1982 the city of Carmel sponsored a questionnaire of registered voters and the results soon became a tool for council members to make critical decisions.

Today the council has under consideration a similar but much more lengthy questionnaire that can provide officials with some needed guidance on how citizens view the community and its problems.

The council got its first look at the proposed multiple choice survey prepared by staff planner Brian Roseth when it met in a special study session Nov. 20.

The survey is to be mailed in early 1985 to the nearly 4,000 registered voters who live within the city limits. The council has agreed with Roseth that the questionnaire should be mailed later because many residents are busy or out of town during the holiday season.

Roseth told the council he plans to take a random sampling of registered voters and ask them to respond to the questionnaire and comment on its clarity, length and adequacy.

After the sampling, the survey will be revised. The council then will get another look at it before the questionnaire is mailed, he said.

The council seemed pleased with the questionnaire and only had a few comments to make.

"It's a bit long and I have several questions to add to it," laughed Councilman Jim Wright, whose wife sampled the 110-question survey and found it took 90 minutes to complete.

Wright and other council members suggested that several questions should be deleted, such as "Do you live within easy

Councilman David Maradei suggested that, Roseth consider deleting questions unless they "focus on a problem or lead us to a solution."

But Maradei did not want to skimp on the number of questions included in the final

"We need to make it as comprehensive as possible because the people who will take the time to fill it out will give us good answers."

Maradei also added that some costs of projects — such as the library expansion and parking garages — should be included in the Wright proposed that Roseth add questions that relate to the issue of banning dogs on Carmel Beach and whether citizens like the service they receive from Monterey Peninsula Cable Television (MPTV).

Each series of questions in the survey is preceded by a brief introductory paragraph. The questions cover a gamut of issues trees, parking, the library, the beach.

The first 16 questions cover the issues that surround the urban forest and parks in Carmel, such as types of trees, whether more should be planted and if there are enough parks in the city.

"The city of Carmel-by-the-Sea is wellknown for its urban forest. This forest is managed and cared for by a city forester and a forestry commission," the opening says.

"Existing city policies encourage a mix of several kinds of trees. These polices also encourage the Monterey Pine as the dominant type of tree in the city. Other trees that are common in Carmel include oaks and red-

"The following questions will help us learn how you feel about Carmel's trees and tree policies."

Trees have been quite controversial in the city for several years. Some residents want a more mixed variety while others like only the Monterey Pine. There also has been the continual question of whether the city should allow trees on public property to be cut for views. So far that answer is "no."

Some examples of the questions in this series include:

• "Do you agree that the city should maintain a predominantly Monterey Pine forest?

• "In your opinion, how would the character of Carmel be changed if different kinds of trees (such as hardwoods or decidious trees) were planted instead of pine

• "In your opinion are there enough trees in your immediate neighborhood?

• "In your opinion, are there enough trees in the commercial district within the city of Carmel?

• "In your opinion, how well has the city cared for and maintained the health of trees in the urban forest?

• "Do you feel that trees block out too much sunlight in your neighborhood? "

• "How frequently do you visit any of Carmel's parks?

• "In your opinion, does the city have enough parks?

• "Do you believe that public funds should be spent on providing more parks?" The survey also will ask citizens how often dependence. Fireworks should be allowed on Carmel's beach.

· "Fireworks are traditional, but the dangers to people and property that result from their use are unacceptable. Fireworks should be banned from Carmel's beach.

• "Fireworks are traditional yet can present problems if they are not controlled. Fireworks should be allowed on Carmel's beach, but only with strict regulations that protect people and property."

A following question simply asks: "Should safe and sane fireworks be allowed on Carmel's Beach?"

Roseth's poll then tackles the touchy question of traffic along Scenic Road.

"Since Scenic Road is heavily used throughout the year by people visiting the beach and the bluff tops at this road's edge, it has been suggested that the city should permanently close Scenic Road to through traf-

The survey deals with even tougher questions as it reaches inquiry number 33, which starts off a series on what to do about Harrison Memorial Library.

The council is moving ahead with plans to expand the library onto Lincoln Street between Ocean and Sixth avenues, which would mean that section of Lincoln Street would be permanently closed.

Some neighboring shopkeepers and residents have joined together to protest the addition, which they say will hurt business. add to traffic congestion and block views. They have demanded that the council place the expansion before voters on a ballot measure.

The questionnaire, however, asks registered voters whether they support the Lincoln Street closure plan, want an annex on city property on the northwest corner of Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue, or want expansion onto the library park area that fronts Ocean Avenue.

"As the library has matured, new services and reading materials have continually been added to meet the needs of library patrons," the survey states.

"As a result the library is now too small to handle the volume of accumulated materials. Faced with this problem, the library staff has transferred over 5,000 books and many volumes of periodicals to a storage room at Sunset Cultural Center.

"The library also has transferred some of its operating functions, like cataloging, inventory control and technical services, to Sunset Center as the need for space has in-

"We would like to know your views on how the library operates and how you feel about some of the different alternatives that have been suggested for expanding the space available for library services."

Some of the other library-related questions

• "Are there specific services that are not offered at the Harrison Memorial Library that you would like added?

• "If the city built a parking lot near the library, would you use the parking lot?"

Is there a specific time of the day or week when you would like to visit the library but are unable to do so because the library is not open?

• "In your opinion, should the library be open on Sunday?

• "Street parking near the library is limited to 20 minutes. Is this limit usually enough time for your visits to the library?

• "In your opinion, should all of the library services be available at a single location or should services be split so that different services are available in different loca-

• "Do you believe that any library expansion should also include an expansion of available parking?"

The survey probes the continuing dilemma of parking and traffic. Questions range from whether citizens own a car to whether they think the timed zones are convenient.

But the key to this issue is whether citizens want more parking facilities constructed. The survey lists some choices the city has available and asks whether citizens support one of the ideas.

One of these choices is not a project, but an ordinance. If citizens agree, the city could study a possible ordinance that would require businesses to provide more parking.

An advantage to this proposal, according to the survey, is that "the increased parking requirement would place the burden of providing parking on the commercial activities that create a need for parking. "The new parking would be close to the commercial activity it served. The cost to the city would be very low and the funds saved could be used for other city projects." But the disadvantages are: "The creation of new parking would only take place over a long period of time as new commercial buildings were built. "Existing shops and buildings would not provide parking until they were replaced with new structures. Parking lots would become more of a visible element within the commercial area," the survey states. In relation to that question, the survey asks: "Should developers of new buildings be required to provide enough parking to satisfy both employee and patron parking needs?" Continued on page 4

Library sketch misled, councilwoman asserts

CARMEL CITY Councilwoman Helen Arnold fears an unapproved design included in a business survey about the Harrison Memorial Library expansion could derail the project before it gets a fair hearing.

Mrs. Arnold plans to bring the issue of the expansion before the council when it meets at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 4 at city hall.

The design included in the survey is the original plan rejected by the council. A second design that features a wider pathway between the expansion and Lincoln Street shops apparently was supposed to be in the

The survey is part of preparation for the draft environmental impact report on the expansion project. The preliminary report being prepared by Earth Science Associates is expected to be ready for public review in mid-December.

"It's a questionnaire of business asking them how they view the proposal and the impacts it may have," city Planner Brian Roseth said.

But included in that survey is a sketch of the expansion designed by the Monterey architectural firm of Hall, Goodhue, Haisley and Barker.

The drawing shows the expansion constructed directly on Lincoln Street between Ocean and Sixth avenues. The main entrance would be moved to the expansion and a second-story walkway would connect the two buildings.

Because Lincoln Street would be closed, the architect designed a landscaped walkway between Ocean and Sixth avenues.

And that walkway is what has upset Mrs. Arnold, who calls it an "alley" because of its small 12-foot width.

Mrs. Arnold believes local businesses will oppose the library expansion because of the small path in the design included in the Business people and area residents opposed to the expansion need to realize that the design proposed by Don Goodhue is not embraced by the council, Mrs. Arnold told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook

"None of the council or planning commission to the best of my knowledge likes that design," Mrs. Arnold said. "That 12-foot walk way would be dark and may be crime inviting," she said.

Mrs. Arnold said she has contacted some of the shopkeepers in the Lincoln Street area to explain that the design is not what the council wants.

HEY ALL refer to it as an alley. I. don't blame them for objecting. But the council did not approve that design," Mrs. Arnold added.

Mrs. Arnold and other members of the council appear to support a proposal to build the expansion closer to the existing library.

That plan would allow for a more inviting and better landscaped 43-foot walkway between Ocean and Sixth avenues, she said.

Mrs. Arnold's contention is supported by other members of the council, who said they did not support the design included in the business survey.

"I regret that the drawings had not been changed after the council's unanimous disapproval of what was laid out," Councilman Robert Stephenson said.

Mayor Charlotte Townsend called the design that is in the survey "not truly compatible" with the original building and "unacceptable" to the council.

"I'm surprised it got published," the mayor said.

Councilman David Maradei said the design is "misleading" but believes that "it won't sway the council in the long run."

City to survey residents on major issues

Another parking alternative is for the city to finance a multi-million dollar, multi-level lot at Sunset Center.

I HE MAIN advantage to this choice is that more parking would "become available quickly and would not depend on future development over a long period of time," according to the survey.

"Since the city already owns the property, the cost to the city would be limited to design, construction and operation of the Disadvantages listed by the survey are "the parking facility would concentrate many cars in one location and this would increase the traffic to and from the parking facility and in the surrounding neighborhood.

"While this alternative would not require the purchase of additional land, it would still be more expensive to build a structure than to build a single level, paved, surface parking

"A parking facility is a large structure and it would have to be carefully designed if an out-of-scale appearance was to be avoided."

The survey offers a third choice, which would be for the city to buy small parcels of property in the commercial district for singlelevel parking facilities.

The advantages to this proposal are "several dispersed small parking lots would avoid a concentration of parking in a single "Parking would be provided near the demand for parking thereby avoiding the need to walk very far from a parking lot to a destination."

The survey lists disadvantages as "the high cost of land would make each parking lot very expensive for the number of parking spaces provided at each location.

"The appearance of several parking lots scattered throughout the commercial district could detract from the character of the

The survey also includes related questions, such as whether parking fees should be assessed and who would pay those costs.

The Oddle family proposes to construct 162 residential units, a restaurant and a farmer's market on 56.2 acres of the eastern portion of the artichoke ranch just south of the Carmel River.

The project was removed from the Carmel Valley Master Plan but then reinstated by Judge Silver last December. A recently completed environmental impact report for Rancho Odello says the developer should be required to provide an on-site sewage treatment system if the Carmel Sanitary District can not provide treatment services.

In its most recent legal move over the Carmel Valley Master Plan, the city of Carmel maintains that a court-ordered environmental impact report is inadequate because the board of supervisors had not adopted the required "findings" to support the EIR.

The board adopted a series of 39 "findings" at its Nov. 20 meeting, but it will be up to Judge Silver to rule on whether that action makes the EIR sufficient for certification. Once the EIR is certified and the master plan adopted, development can proceed in

Since the Environmental Protection Agenev denied an $8 million grant request by the Carmel Sanitary District for an alreadyinitiated wastewater reclamation project, the the position that the Pebble Beach district district has had to seek other means to increase its treatment capacity.

The reclamation project was developed to comply with a state order to cease discharge of treated effluent into Carmel Bay. Highlytreated wastewater was to be sold to local golf courses for irrigation.

But the Carmel Sanitary District has asked the Regional Water Quality Control Board to increase its discharge capacity from 2.4 million gallons per day to 3 mgd and to permit discharge into Carmel Bay. The state board is to consider the Carmel request at its March 19, 1985 meeting.

THIS INCREASE is necessary in order for our district to continue performing its function of collecting, treating and disposing of wastewater," Zambory wrote to Kenneth Jones, executive director of the regional water board, in an Oct. 26 letter.

"Recently, the board of supervisors (considered adoption of) a master plan for the development of Carmel Valley. In addition, the Coastal Commission and the board of supervisors have adopted local coastal plans for Del Monte Forest, the city of Carmel and county areas adjacent.

"As a result of these completed land use plans, we are receiving numerous requests for annexation to out district," according to Zambory's letter.

The Pebble Beach Community Services District, which purchases one-third the treatment capacity of the Carmel plant, has moved ahead with plans to construct its own $4 million treatment plant which could treat 600,000 gallons per day.

Pebble Beach directors have approved the environmental impact report for that plant and hope to break ground in December for the Spanish Bay development — a 270-unit hotel, 80 condominium units, a golf course and restaurant.

However, Monterey Peninsula Water Management District directors have taken must obtain a permit from their agency before the wastewater treatment plant can be constructed.

Water management directors also have expressed the wish that the Pebble Beach and Carmel districts could cooperate on some kind of joint treatment project.

"Whatever capacity increase is granted our district will be shared with the Pebble Beach Community Services District on a onethird/two-thirds basis," Zambory wrote.

"The requested 600,000 gallon per day increase will net Pebble Beach 200,000 gallons per day and Carmel 400,000 gallons per day of additional capacity. Each of the two districts requires at least this minimum increase at the present time.

The Coastal Commission is scheduled to consider the permit by Pebble Beach Co. for its proposed Spanish Bay development at its Dec. 11-13 meeting in San Francisco.

Planning panel recommends a moratorium

WHAT CAN the city do to prevent the demolition or remodeling of a significant building such as the Tuck Box, Pine Inn or the China Art Center?

Very little, says the Carmel Planning Commission, and that's why it has recommended that the city council enact a moratorium on all demolitions and structural alterations of significant commercial buildings in the city.

The planning commission Nov. 14 endorsed such a plan in a unanimously-approved resolution.

However, because some changes have to be made staff will tackle the issue in more detail and revisions could go back to commissioners in December.

The city plans to begin a comprehensive survey in January of all significant buildings in Carmel. The city has applied for a Coastal Commission grant to finance the survey.

As part of the study, commissioners also believe the city needs to prepare a comprehensive ordinance to keep signficant buildings from being altered or demolished.

In 1979 the city, in cooperation with several university students, conducted a survey of buildings in town and compiled a list of those considered "significant" in terms of architectural style, historic value and age.

All of the commercial buildings on the 1979 list should be included in the moratorium. Residences should not be subject to the ban, commissioners recommend.

In her staff report, Assistant Planning Director Diane White told commissioners the Coastal Commission has required the city to provide an updated significant buildings list.

"Certification of the city's local coastal program and implementation program has been withheld until the city adopts protection measures for significant buildings," she reported.

"There are two regulations in the city's existing code that provide some measure of protection for significant buildings," Mrs. White continued.

One of the regulations requires applicants to submit plans for design review by the planning commission, she said.

Another measure to protect significant buildings is incorporated in a "village overlay district" that was adopted as part of 1983 General Plan, Mrs. White added.

"The overlay district is intended to protect significant buildings and requires special findings to be made by the commission in approving alterations to properties within the overlay district," she explained.

The overlay district basically encompases

Ocean Avenue from Monte Verde Street to Junipero Avenue.

THERE ARE about 30 different commercial structures included on the 1979 significant buildings list.

Some of the more commonly known buildings listed include: the Tuck Box, Pine Inn, Dansk II, Normandy Inn, Goold and Doud buildings, Las Tiendes, Studio Theater, El Paseo, China Art Center, Rittmaster and Mediterranean Market.

The 1979 report obviously is out of date. It lists the demolished Texaco Gas Station and Piccadilly Nursery as significant buildings.

The planning commission resolution that urges council adoption of a moratorium states that "much of the unique and historical character of Carmel-by-the-Sea is represented in its structures."

In other action Nov. 14, commissioners:

• Continued a request from Katie Curry for a chimney at her restaurant Katy's Place on the east side of Mission Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues.

• Approved a pasta-making enterprise to open in the former San Francisco Federal Savings and Loan building, west side of Junipero Avenue between Sixth and Fifth avenues.

• Approved an application from Craig McFarland for an antique shop in his nowunder-construction Cottage Row, northwest corner of San Carlos Street and Sixth Avenue.

• Denied an application from La Playa Hotel for a greenhouse structure at the southwest corner of Camino Real and Eighth Avenue.

• Denied an application from Robert Carlisle for gazebo-type tents over tables in the Village Corner patio, northeast corner of Dolores Street and Sixth Avenue.

• Told Al Fior to resubmit his application for a directory sign at The Mall, east side of San Carlos Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues.

• Denied an application from John and Juanita Fields to serve food at Sade's cocktail lounge, south side of Ocean Avenue between Lincoln and Monte Verde streets.

• Approved an application from Debra Sponder for some outdoor seating at the Bayou Cafe, northwest corner of Mission Street and Sixth Avenue.

• Continued an application from the Carmel Plaza to relocate the Bank of America building on Ocean Avenue to a Mission Street location in the plaza. The bank building then would be converted to retail space.

• Denied a use permit application from the Carmel Inn residential facility for senior citizens for underground parking.

THE TUCK BOX restaurant on Dolores Street is one of the significant buildings the city wants to preserve. The Carmel Planning Commission has adoped a resolution that asks the city council to place a moratorium on remodeling or demolishment of significant buildings. The Tuck Box is not planning such action, but is just an example of a significant building. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Williams submits plans for Carmel condo project

ALAN WILLIAMS, a Carmel building designer, has submitted plans to the city for a 12-unit condominium development on the northwest corner of Junipero and Fourth avenues.

Williams proposes to build the units on 20,000 sq. ft. with 26 underground parking spaces. The density would be 26.6 units per acre.

And Williams does not need to fear a draft water conservation ordinance that could restrict his development.

Williams said there is enough water allocated in the draft ordinance for the multiple-family residential zone so that his project can go ahead. (See related story, this issue)

The planning commission will be asked to grant concept approval of the plan in January, Williams told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook Nov. 23.

If concept approval is granted he then would prepare tentative specific maps to be submitted for city approval, said Williams, who also has developed an 11-unit condominium project on the southwest corner of Junipero and Fourth avenues called "The Chimneys."

The proposed condominiums would be two-bedrooms and two baths to be sold at a still-undetermined price. No low- or moderate-cost housing is included in his proposal. Units at The Chimneys cost about $385,000.

Williams expects to take up to 10 months to get through the city planning process and a similar wait until a financing package can be arranged.

Williams has not abandoned his plan to develop a motel and low-cost housing in that neighborhood.

Plans have been underway for Williams and a group of investors to build two 20-unit motels on both sides of Junipero Avenue between Fourth and Third avenues.

In return for permission to build the motels, Williams proposes to construct about 48 low-cost housing units on Torres Street between Fourth and Third avenues.

Carmel council ready to approve measure to limit business growth

By MICHAEL GARDNER

PERHAPS THE rain that pattered down on Carmel City Hall roof the evening of Nov. 20 was a sign from the heavens that a wet winter is ahead.

But for now a worried Carmel City Council appears ready to implement a growthrestricting water conservation ordinance rain or no rain.

The council reviewed Planner Brian Roseth's proposed stringent water conservation ordinance during a special study session

And judging from the few critical comments and only one speaker from the audience, the council probably will adopt the ordinance when it meets at 4 p.m. Dec. 4 at city hall.

The ordinance would sharply limit the amount of new commercial growth in the city because there simply is not enough water.

The city faces a water crisis because it currently uses 97.8 percent of its 1,030.8 acre feet yearly allocation from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. (There are 325,851 gallons of water in one acre foot.)

If the city uses 100 percent of its allocation, the water district could ban all new water connections, which would stop residential and commercial development in town.

To ward off such extreme consequences, Roseth has prepared an allocation system of his own.

This proposed allocation system — in the form of a draft ordinance — would establish priorities for the remaining water available to the city.

The number one priority for water is new development in the R-1 (single family residential) zone.

Second on that priority list is the R-4

(multiple family) zone, which includes condominiums and apartments.

But nowhere in the ordinance is there an allocation for new commercial development. Any new project that uses more water than was consumed by the previous tenant would be prohibited.

For example, if the ordinance is adopted actor Clint Eastwood could not build his proposed two-story retail and office complex on the west side of San Carlos Street between Sixth and Fifth avenues.

Or, a new shop that would have more employees and floor space could not replace a smaller store because more workers and more customers translate into additional water consumption.

The council had nothing but praise for most of the proposed ordinance. And in earlier interviews this month, council members wholeheartedly endorsed the con-

"It's good to get out of reacting and do some planning ahead," Mayor Charlotte Townsend told Roseth Nov. 20.

THE ONLY major change proposed by the council is to allocate more water for the residential district and less for the R-4 zone.

That suggestion was made by Councilman James Wright, who said: "I personally think the allocation for development in the R-4 is too much.

"It really gives R-4 the number one priority because it provides water for a complete buildout of R-4," he said.

Roseth had allocated water to the R-4 zone based on a density of 44 units per acre. The maximum density is 33 units per acre, but city law allows a "density bonus" of up to 11 units per acre if the developer allocates some of the housing to low- or moderate-income buyers or renters.

CLINT EASTWOOD will have to get used to looking at this vacant lot adjacent to his Hog's Breath Restaurant on San Carlos Street. Eastwood has plans for a two-story retail and office complex on the vacant lot, but the project will be delayed by at least a

But Wright said the allocation to the R-4 district should be based on a lower density, which then would provide more water for single family residential development.

The council appeared to settle on allocation of water to the R-4 zone on the basis of a maximum density of 33 units per acre, which would include the density bonus for low- or moderate-cost housing.

Roseth is to rework his allocation formula using the lower density for R-4 and bring it back to the council Dec. 4.

The only audience member to speak on the ordinance was Alan Williams, who has plans for a low-cost housing project in the R-4 zone on Junipero Avenue between Fourth and Third avenues.

Williams is worried that his project would be stalled if the draft ordinance incorporates the lower density suggested by Wright.

But the council told Williams the lower density factor in the draft ordinance is only a measuring device for the purpose of vear if the city council Dec. 6 adopts a water conservation ordinance prohibiting new commercial development if it consumes more water than the previous use on the site. The above property now is used for storage. (Michael Gardner photo.)

allocating water to the entire R-4 zone. It would not change the allowable zoning from a maximum of 44 units to 33 per acre.

In its original form before the changes suggested by Wright were made, the draft ordinance would allow water for 124 new single family residential units to be built in Carmel between now and the year 2000, Roseth told the council.

'To the best of our records' there are 111 individual vacant R-1 lots, Roseth said.

He added that there are 101 lots adjacent to a home site that could be developed if the owner chose to sell the adjacent property or apply for a lot split and build another home.

The current building trend in Carmel is five to 10 new houses per year, Roseth added.

In another issue, the council agreed with the planning commission work program, which outlines the projects the commission hopes to accomplish in the next seven months.

Supervisors continue CV Ranch discussion

By MICHAEL GARDNER

THE Monterey County planning staff must feel like a ping pong ball during the current controversy over whether Carmel Valley Ranch should be required to prepare a focused environmental impact report for its fourth phase of development.

Supervisors will continue the debate between the planning commission — which wanted a focused EIR — and ranch attorneys - who didn't want to prepare another document — when they meet at 9:15 a.m. Dec. 4 in the county courthouse in Salinas.

The board Nov. 27 considered 20 pages of "findings" to support Carmel Valley Ranch, which had filed an appeal with supervisors to overturn a planning commission ruling that would have required a focused EIR for the fourth phase of the 500-unit project.

Supervisors continued the discussion so staff could prepare a report on the potential traffic impact the development will have on Center Road.

The final phase envisions 132 residential units on 89 acres on the hillside on the south side of Carmel Valley Road about six miles east of Highway 1.

Planning commissioners had determined that the additional environmental documents should be prepared because the original phase four plan was smaller.

However, overall development at Carmel Valley Ranch still would not exceed the originally-approved 400 residential units. A 100-unit hotel also is planned.

A focused EIR is a smaller version of a complete environmental impact report, but it only includes a specific area of an overall project.

The issue illustrates the daily problems that confront planning staff.

The staff originally was told by the planning commission to prepare findings to support its contention that Carmel Valley Ranch needed a focused EIR.

Meanwhle, ranch attorneys filed an appeal to the supervisors.

Almost overnight — because of their additional workload — county planners prepared about 15 findings to support the planning commission contention that a focused EIR is necessary.

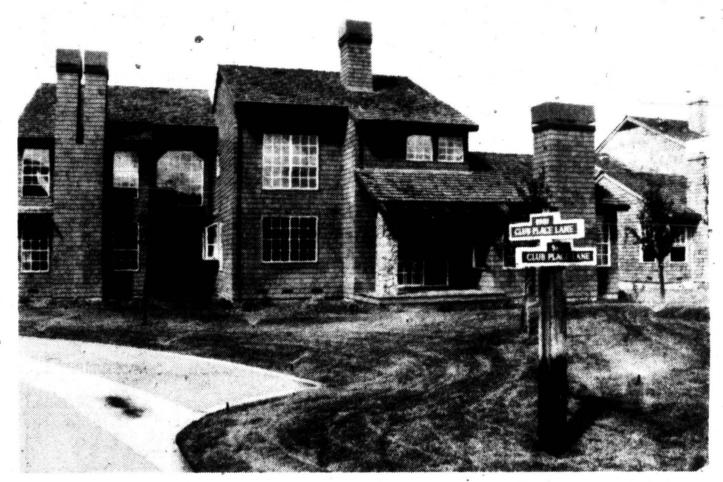

A battery of ranch attorneys — including Myron Etienne and Tony Lombardo prepared a similar counterpoint to argue their Supervisors got their first earful of debate in early November and didn't like what they heard.

Carmel Valley Ranch argued against many of the points prepared by staff that raised concerns about such environmental impacts as traffic, water and viewshed.

Etienne presented a detailed outline of where supervisors could find mitigating measures in the already-adopted Carmel Valley Ranch specific plan and original EIR.

ETIENNE'S presentation prompted Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck of Salinas to criticize staff for its handling of the findings. Supervisors Nov. 6 postponed action and

On Nov. 13 staff presented revised findings that listed just a handful of concerns. The shrinking list was caused by Etienne's points that were delivered Nov. 6.

And after further discussion supervisors appeared to reach a consensus that the only real unmitigated environmental concern is the potential loss of trees.

The shrinking list again provoked Mrs.

Shipnuck, who said: "I feel an apology is in order to the public...and the developer" for taking so much time.

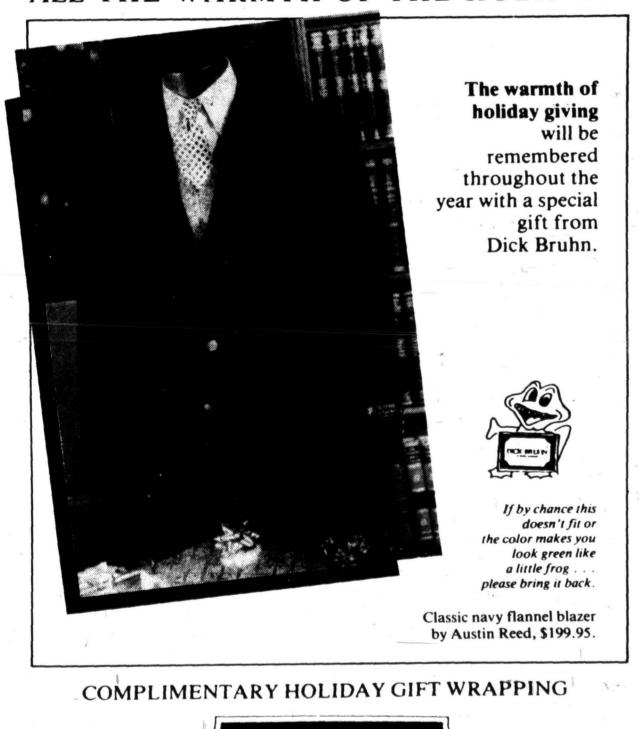

"To me it says we didn't do our homework...(We're) holding a hearing we shouldn't be," she argued.

When Planner Lynne Mounday tried to react to that statement, Mrs. Shipnuck said: "I will not be interrupted by a staff member when speaking — any staff member."

Tree lighting ceremony in Mid Valley planned Friday

THE HOLIDAY season in Carmel Valley unofficially begins with the annual tree lighting ceremony and open house Friday, Nov. 30, at the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Station.

The open house begins at 6:30 p.m., and the tree lighting begins at 7 p.m. at the station, 8455 Carmel Valley Rd.

For many residents of Carmel Valley, the holiday season begins when the lights on the Christmas tree on Saddle Mountain come on.

The Christmas tree was first lit in 1963 by a group of Mid Valley neighbors spearheaded by Mr. and Mrs. Milt Frumpkin. A lot of time and effort went into the design and installation of a pulley system for the 200 lights, which transform the 50-foot pine tree into the beautiful Christmas tree each year.

In 1976, the Frumpkins asked the Mid

Carmel Valley Fire Department if it would take over the tree as a community project. The Mid Carmel Valley Fire Department volunteers accepted.

In 1976, the volunteers discovered the tree needed a face-lift. A work party made its way to the tree, which can only be reached on foot. In 1977, the tree was completely rewired and the light bulbs were replaced. The funds for the tree project come from donations, which the volunteers place in the "Christmas Tree Fund."

Each November the volunteers make the trek to the tree to prepare it for the upcoming holiday season. Egg nog and goodies will be served at the open house. Everyone is invited. It is a get-together for friends and neighbors.

The volunteers invite a resident of the Valley to be the "official tree lighter." This year, General James Doolittle of Carmel Valley Manor has accepted to give the command "light the tree!"

CVPOA to hear Strasser Kauffman

Carmel Valley Property Owners Association members will meet to hear views and opinions of new Fifth District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman at a quarterly general meeting Dec. 4. The meeting will be in the Redwood Room at Del Mesa Carmel at 7:30 p.m.

Jerry Foote, CVPOA president, said all interested residents of Carmel Valley are invited to attend. Those who attend will have an opportunity to meet their newly elected representative and to ask questions.

Much of the discussion will probably center around the Carmel Valley Master Plan and growth, water and environmental problems facing the Valley, Mrs. Foote said.

Supervisors continue CV Ranch discussion

Supervisor Marc Del Piero of Castroville came to the defense of staff. He pointed out that many of the issues raised are required by law and staff simply was "protecting our interests."

When the dust had settled, supervisors appeared to reach a consensus that the focused EIR would not be necessary.

So Mounday was sent back to his desk for another week to rewrite the findings to state why the focused EIR would not be required. Mounday had written the findings to support the planning commission contention that the additional environmental information should be mandated.

Supervisors on Nov. 20 reviewed Mounday's new findings, but decided to postpone action until the traffic study is completed.

The proposed findings basically state that Carmel Valley Ranch — to mitigate the traffic increase — has provided funds for the widening of Carmel Valley Road and has undertaken an underpass at Robinson Canyon Road.

C ARMEL VALLEY PERSPECTIVE

Board adds 'findings' to Valley Master Plan

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors has added 39 new "findings" to the proposed Carmel Valley Master Plan and its accompanying environmental impact report apparently in direct response to a city of Carmel court challenge.

The changes adopted by supervisors Nov. 20 may dilute some of the key arguments special counsel Alexander Henson is to present Nov. 29 before Monterey County Superior Court Judge Richard Silver.

Silver in 1980 clamped a moratorium on discretionary use permits in Carmel Valley until supervisors revised the master plan and prepared an EIR. He is to determine whether environmental safeguards in the master plan are adequate.

The city argues that the EIR and master plan are deficient in mitigation measures to protect the environment.

In a Nov. 2 interview with the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook, Henson detailed five major city concerns, which focused on the alleged lack of measures in the master plan and EIR to mitigate the effects development will have on the Valley environment.

That interview followed a Nov. 1 court hearing where Deputy County Counsel Jose Ramos presented the case for the county. Silver then continued the hearing until Nov. 29.

But sometime after Nov. 2, county officials decided to revise the master plan in an apparent effort to head off city criticism in court.

The county planning commission Nov. 14 recommended 39 new findings to incorporate in the master plan. In addition, the commission added explanatory provisions and background information to more than 50 other segments of the master plan and EIR.

The half-inch-thick packet adopted by planners then was submitted to supervisors for their adoption Nov. 20.

In his cover letter, Ramos wrote: "The city of Carmel has objected in court that the findings for the adoption of the Carmel Valley Master Plan are not sufficient.

"This hearing permits further discussion on the adoption of the Carmel Valley Master Plan and permits your board to make further findings on the Carmel Valley Master Plan before the litigation resumes on Nov. 29, 1984."

THE 39 new findings focus on comments about the EIR received from various agencies.

One of the complaints lodged by the city is that supervisors deleted some mitigation measures after receiving comments from agencies, such as the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, the city of Carmel and the League of Women Voters.

The city argues that the environmental impact report should be redistributed for public comment since some mitigation measures were later deleted.

But in the new findings, supervisors claim that many of the comments are answered in different sections of the EIR.

For example, Henson himself wrote that some mitigation measures need to be taken to stop further development if traffic reaches an "intolerable" level.

Late in the adoption process supervisors approved a "trigger mechanism" that did meet Henson's concerns, the findings state.

That provision requires a moratorium on all new commercial development if the Hatton Canyon Freeway is not constructed within five years of court certification of the master plan.

The city of Carmel wrote that only 1,000 new dwellings should be allowed until additional water supply is available.

The new findings point out that the master plan allocation system allows only 1,181 new lots of record for the 20-year life of the plan.

However, the findings do not separate new lots of record from the current existing approximately 1,000 lots of record. That provision means that up to about 2,181 new lots of record can be developed while the city apparently wants only 1,000.

"The mitigation measures suggested by the city of Carmel have been incorporated into the Carmel Valley Master Plan to achieve a reduction in the level of impacts forecast by the city," the new findings state.

"These policies, maps, density and procedures should reduce the level of impact to an acceptable level which will not adversely affect the environment."

Council to act on 'second kitchens'

Two GIANT steps toward providing more low-cost housing in Carmel may be taken by the city council when it meets at 4 p.m. Dec. 4 at city hall.

The council will consider a plan to buy property adjacent to three city-owned lots on the west side of Dolores Street between Fifth and Fourth avenues.

In a related matter, council members will once again tackle the issue of legalized - and rent controlled - second kitchens, which they believe could provide additional lowcost housing.

The city was the successful high bidder in an Amador County estate sale of the two properties. The city bid $314,200. Formal ratification of that bid is before the council next Tuesday.

The other three adjacent lots already under city ownership were purchased separately for about $300,000.

The council has plans to use the five lots for a low-cost senior citizen housing complex. Preliminary discussions are underway with the Carmel Foundation and Monterey County Housing Authority for possible construction and operation of the complex.

The second kitchen issue has been debated for more than two decades in Carmel. A second kitchen usually is defined as a room in a main house or detached garage with stove. sink and refrigerator.

Supporters of legalized second kitchens say the units provide needed low-cost housing. Opponents fear legalization will allow duplexes in the single-family residential zone and create parking and congestion problems.

But the latest draft ordinance to allow second kitchens appears to be a compromise that will win council approval.

Even Councilman Robert Stephenson, long an opponent of legalized second kitchens, appears satisfied with the plan already endorsed by the planning commission.

"I'm afraid we will," Stephenson said in response to a question on whether the council will finally approve second kitchens.

trying to defeat it. (Staff) has provided enough safeguards that have made my objections less vehement," he explained.

The draft ordinance actually incorporates legalized second kitchens within an entire code on what the city calls "subordinate housing."

There are three classifications of subordinate housing:

• "Class A: Occupancy of a single room or rooms sharing common kitchen facilities with a primary residence.

• "Class B: Occupancy of a single room with small and portable kitchen appliances within a primary residence.

 "Class C: Occupancy of a single room or rooms within or accessory to the primary residence which provides complete and independent living facilities."

EACH OF the classifications also has accompanying restrictions.

All of the units will have to be registered with the city. Landlords who do not register their units will be fined $1,000.

All of the units will be rent-controlled at a price to be determined later by the council.

The council is expected to allow units to be rented to only low and moderate income tenants. The rents probably would be restricted to 25 percent of a tenant's income.

For example, if the tenant earns $12,000 annually, the landlord could charge only $250 per month.

The Monterey Bay Area Association of Governments only has low and moderate income guideline figures for the average county household of 2.85 people.

Low income families earn less than $14,129 annually. Moderate income families earn less than $21,193.

However, the city would have to establish its own guidelines because the average household in Carmel is less than 2.85 persons and no more than two people will be allowed to rent a subordinate unit.

Those second kitchen tenants earning more than $21,193 would be given 12 months to Rent restrictions are incorporated to ensure that low and moderate income tenants benefit from legalized second kitchens.

Other general restrictions in the draft ordinance include: the property must be owneroccupied, it must comply with city health and safety codes, and not more than one person can occupy units classified as Class A or B.

However, a couple could occupy a larger Class C unit if it "provides complete and independent living facilities."

Mayor Charlotte Townsend is pleased that the council is moving ahead with plans to provide less expensive housing in the city.

"I've always been interested in doing whatever we can for low income and senior citizen housing," she said. "I'm glad we're finally coming to grips with the situation." •

Councilman David Maradei agreed: "I want to see these projects move ahead as fast as they possibly can. I think second kitchens are going to become a reality."

And Councilwoman Helen Arnold added that she is "pretty confident" the council will approve the property purchase and legalized second kitchens.

"I see no reason why we can't now," she said.

Littles want to rebuild

Carmel Sands project goes to city Dec. 4

A PLAN to demolish and then rebuild the 42-room Carmel Sands Lodge and the now-closed Simpson's Restaurant downtown complex tentatively is to be presented to the Carmel City Council when it meets at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 4 in city hall.

The Little family, which owns the complex, failed in its attempts two years ago to obtain council approval of the project on the northeast corner of San Carlos Street and Fifth Avenue.

The council delayed action on the proposal until after the general plan was revised. The city a steed a revised general plan Dec. 31, 1983.

The Little family does not want to expand the number of rooms at the hotel. However, existing city ordinances allow only one room per 1,000 sq. ft., which would allow 33 units on the 33,000 sq. ft. site.

In addition, the cocktail lounge in the restaurant is a non-conforming use and the city has tried to eliminate non-conforming uses.

The Littles also want to relocate the Carmel Insurance Agency, the family business, to the project site. Sixty-five underground parking spaces also are planned.

Current city codes allow an owner to remodel 25 percent of the business per year.

"The argument we have is that it is better to rebuild than remodel. When you rebuild you get everything to 1985 specifications—parking, electrical, water, everything," family spokesman Matthew Little told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook last week.

"The issue is, if it is remodeled it stays the way it is. Some of those buildings were built in 1926," he said. "All they have to do is decide which is better. We want direction."

Little added that if the city does not allow the complex to be rebuilt then the family will undertake a remodeling project at 25 percent per year for the next four years.

Although the plans have drawn the interest of the council, a couple of members say they must be cautious that the city does not establish a precedent if the Littles' plan is approved.

"I hope the council is flexible enough to give serious consideration to all proposals," Mayor Charlotte Townsend said.

"We're going to have to look at it very carefully. You worry about setting a precedent," she added.

The mayor also expressed concern about a potential water use increase.

"It's a complex picture," she said.

COUNCILWOMAN Helen Arnold also voiced concern that approval would establish a precedent and could allow all developers to rebuild rather than remodel at 25 percent per year.

"That's one thing we're going to have to come to grips with," Mrs. Arnold said. "The compensation will have to be pretty great to do that. Everybody else has abided by the 25 percent rule."

But Councilman David Maradei does not share their worries.

"I think Matt probably should be allowed to develop. It would be a decision based on the best interests of the community," Maradei said.

Some of the pluses for the project include the underground parking, an increase in hostelry tax since room rates would rise after the units are rebuilt and "we won't have the city streets torn up for four years," Maradei said.

The council has a busy agenda for its Dec. 4 session, including:

• An appeal of a planning commission decision to deny additional seating at Fifi's Bakery, east side of San Carlos Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues.

• A report on Sunday patronage at Harrison Memorial Library. The council four months ago asked that the library be reopened on Sundays and called for a report later to determine whether use justified the $6,000 cost of Sunday hours.

• A recommendation that the mayor send a letter of appreciation to Jon Raggett, who recently resigned as chairman of the Carmel Beach Rehabilitation Task Force.

• The issue of which consultant should design the landscaping for phase two of the Carmel Beach rehabilitation project. The city had hired Royston, Hanamoto, Alley and Abey of Mill Valley to design the plans.

However, the firm wanted about $99,000 and the city had allocated only $75,000. Now the firm may lower its price or the council will hire another landscape designer.

• Setting Jan. 8 as the regular meeting for the council. The council usually meets on the first Tuesday of the month, but the first of January is New Year's Day.

• Scheduling the first city Town Hall meeting for Jan. 22.

Cal-Am answers complaints about broken water pipes

NEARLY ONE out of every four dollars in the maintenance budget for the California-American Water Co. is allocated for repairs in the city of Carmel.

That is what Cal-Am Vice President Larry Foy told Carmel Mayor Charlotte Townsend in response to some complaints made by the city.

The council has asked the Public Utilities Commission to pressure Cal-Am into spending more money to repair broken water pipes in Carmel.

The city charges that the breaks and subsequent slow repairs are a tremendous waste of a resource Carmel has very little of — water.

"The company has a main replacement program which is approved by the Public Utilities Commission on a three-year, forward-look basis," Foy wrote in his letter to Mayor Townsend.

"Of those total dollars authorized, between 16 and 25 percent of that total budget has been or is dedicated to the city of Carmelby-the-Sea during the years 1984 through 1988."

Foy told the mayor he met with City Administrator Doug Schmitz on Nov. 6 and pointed out that "the company is experiencing an extreme number of leaks due to the hot, dry weather conditions during this season which has caused some ground movements allowing some of the older two-inch galvanized and cast iron mains to shift causing leaks."

Foy explained to the mayor that 983 leaks had been reported to Cal-Am from January to October within its Monterey Peninsula service area.

He added that the 3,107 Carmel residents constitute just "0.097 percent" of the water customers through the Cal-Am service area.

"We feel that, although the conditions are unusual, the company has responded in a very expedient manner and has worked its crews continually on a seven-day basis, including evenings, not only to try and keep up with the number of leaks, but also to conserve as much loss of water as possible during a water shortage year as experienced earlier in the summer months," Foy wrote.

Foy concluded that he would be "more than happy" to meet with the council and "elaborate on the conditions and problems."

CARMEL citizens and public officials are getting angrier at California-American Water Co. despite claims by its manager that the company is doing all it can to repair water pipe breaks in Carmel. City Administrator Doug Schmitz reported that at least five citizens called Cal-Am Saturday morning to inform the company of a water main break on Dolores Street near Ocean Avenue. Repair crews (pictured above) did not show up until Monday morning, 46 hours after the initial complaint, Schmitz said. Additionally, the city had reported a water pipe leak on San Carlos Street near the Hofsas House hotel. The leak went unrepaired and the water caused the street to collapse under the pressure of two cars Sunday morning. The cars received heavy damage underneath and tires were punctured, Schmitz said. (Michael Gardner photo.)

It was charcoal — not the water

IT WAS not the water, but charcoal infiltration that caused the inky black substance presented to the Carmel City Council Nov. 6.

That is the word from Robert Coffin, who presented the exhibit to the council.

Coffin had poured inky black water out of a filtering device to show the council potential problems with the water.

His demonstration was reported in this newspaper.

But tests indicated that the black color actually was caused by charcoal that leaked into the main thermos of the filtering device, Coffin told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook Nov. 8.

The finely-ground charcoal is one of the substances used in the device to filter impurities in the water.

Coffin said it appears that his filter is defective.

City officials to meet with business people

CARMEL city officials — in an attempt to avoid some major problems created two years ago by a similar project — plan to meet at least twice with area businesses before a contractor begins to underground the storm drainage system on the west side of Mission Street between Fourth and Ocean avenues.

Officials will present an informational session on the $104,000 Mission Street project at 9 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 6 at city hall. Another session is planned for early February.

Work on the project is not expected to begin until after mid-February so merchants will not lose much business generated from the holiday season and Bing Crosby Pro-Am Golf Tournament, said Assistant City Administrator Greg D'Ambrosio.

In October of 1982, a city contractor tore up Sixth Avenue between San Carlos and Lincoln streets to underground the utilities.

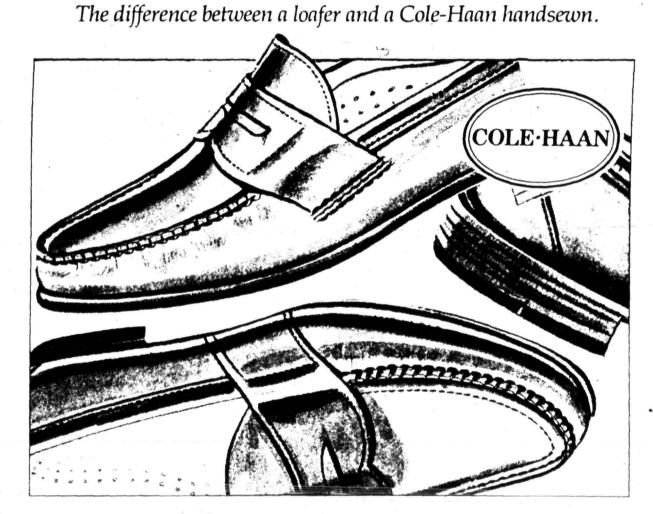

But several major art exhibits were to open in the neighborhood galleries that weekend. Art galleries schedule new shows months in advance.

Art gallery owners and some other shopkeepers complained to the city that they did not receive enough advance notice of the project so they could reschedule the openings which artists travel across the globe to attend.

D'Ambrosio added that anyone who cannot attend the Dec. 6 meeting may contact him at 624-1172.

ONSCIENCE OFCARMEL

Y GUNNAR NORBERG

Legalize 'second kitchens'

SOON, probably next week, the Carmel City Council will have before it the latest draft of a subordinate residential-unit ordinance.

What, you might ask, does all that mean? It has to do with the city's "second kitchen" problem, and is a proposal to settle that problem. It seems to me that the draft ordinance deviates from the guidelines suggested last January by then-City Atty. George Brehmer in a clear and illuminating memorandum to the city council.

I refer to the replies received at city hall in response to a city questionnaire sent out in 1982 to all city registered voters. Two inquiries asked voters to express approval or disapproval of "second kitchens" on the sites of single-family homes in Carmel's residentially-zoned district.

One of the two questions was phrased this way: "Should the city allow 'second kitchens' in single-family dwellings? This would then permit the renting of such quarters and has been suggested as a means of supplying low and moderate (income) housing." Nearly three of every four of the responding voters - 71.5 percent — answered "yes" to this question.

The second, and more direct, of the two questions was: "Do you approve or disapprove of second kitchens within the residential district?" And the replies to this plainly worded question, which was not tied in any way to the provision of low- or moderate-income housing, also brought a high 68 percent proportion of favorable answers.

It is not my intention to question the need for low- to moderate-income housing within Carmel, but only to point out that even when no reference to that need was tied to the question on "second kitchens," voters overwhelmingly expressed approval.

In that January memo to the city council, Brehmer suggested the city should approach the dilemma through an expansion of the existing rooming house permit procedure.

"Since this mechanism for providing housing has been in effect for some time," he said, "it is suggested that it be explored as an avenue for meeting the city's low-income housing needs.

"The regulations governing rooming house permits could be expanded to allow the use of food preparation facilities. When considering this approach, keep in mind that all rooms rented in the residential district, require rooming house permits."

Brehmer pointed out that "rented rooms for which there is no rooming house permit and which have second kitchens are primarily illegal because no rooming house permit has been obtained."

Then he added: "The illegal existence of a second kitchen is secondary to the illegality of renting rooms without a house permit. Thus, the enforcement effort should be directed at enforcing the rooming house permit requirement. Such enforcement would automatically pick up the second kitchen. If the regulations are changed (for the rooming house permit to allow second food preparation equipment and facilities under some conditions, some of the existing second kitchens would probably qualify to remain, and others would have to be abated. The process would be equally applied."

INSTEAD of simply abating the unqualified second kitchens, there could also be a provision that such second kitchens could be allowed some reasonable period of time for needed upgrading.

Because rooming houses are prohibited in Carmel, Brehmer proposed that the name, "rooming house permit," should be changed to fit what that permit allows, which is simply a permit to allow the renting of a room or rooms on the site of a single-family dwelling in the residential zoned district. Brehmer suggested the existing permit should be renamed a roomers' permit. Perhaps more precisely it could be called a room renting permit.

Another section of the newly proposed subordinate residential-unit ordinance would seem to fly in the face of objections Brehmer had because of his interpretation of the safeguards required by both the state constitution and by existing state statutes. Here's what Brehmer said:

"Problems arise regarding equal protection when distinctions are made based on personal circumstances rather than on differences in the land."

Continuing in response to a proposal which had been made by Councilman Jim Wright about rent control on rooms rented under a renting permit, Brehmer said: "Applying the foregoing to Mr. Wright's proposal, it calls for granting special use provisions to owners (of the rented rooms) who meet standards presumably (set) for the personal benefit of the renting occupants. Thus, land use is being determined, not on the basis of distinctions in the land, but on the personal needs of the occupants.

"Municipal involvement in economics, though sanctioned by statute, remains of questionable constitutionality in some circles. When occurring as a rationale for justifying in otherwise unequal treatment of owners of like land in the same district, the marriage of the two vulnerabilities favors the seeking of other methods of resolving the problem."

This would seem to put in peril the content of a long section in the proposed subordinate residential-unit ordinance, which is titled, "Rent Guarantee and Tenant-Qualifying Contract." This legally dubious section mixes up a questionable rent control concept with a complex land-use arrangement, which would suggest a court could throw out the mixed bag ordinance in which it would be contained.

This, in turn, leads me back to the overwhelming approval given by city voters in that 1982 questionnaire to the inquiry which plainly asked — without any reference to whether or not low- or moderate-income applications would be benefited — if voters approved "second kitchens" within the residential district.

BECAUSE the proposed subordinate residential-unit ordinance would recognize both smaller and larger room rentals under a permit procedure, there also would be the likelihood that a range of rental charges acceptable to low- to moderate-income applicants would be available, even without the rent-control arrangements which the Brehmer memorandum seemed to consider seriously suspect.

Presumably the range of room rentals, now illegal because they are provided without benefit of a city permit, and which are considered as part of the city's low- to moderate-income housing stock, would be little different from what they previously had been, unless very costly upgrading of facilities were to be compelled under a revised and renamed rooming house permit.

Meanwhile the city has title to three lots on the west side of Dolores Street between Fourth and Fifth avenues, and is likely to purchase two adjacent additional lots — all of which would be intended specifically to be used by the city as the site for the housing of low- to moderate-income tenants.

The gradual legalizing of the units, with a start to be made under a revised rooming house permit procedure beginning with the present holders of the legal rooming house permits, could lead to safer accommodations.

Apparent from the replies in that 1982 voter survey is the fact that the great majority of Carmel residents approve the existence in the residential district of "second kitchen" accommodations. (Copyright 1984 Gunnar Norberg.)

Opposition grows to Spanish Bay project

OPPONENTS OF the Spanish Bay resort development in Pebble Beach soon may have allies in the Carmel and Pacific Grove city councils.

Carmel Councilman David Maradei plans to ask the council to adopt a position in opposition to Spanish Bay when it meets at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 4 at city hall.

The Pacific Grove City Council is to consider a similar resolution of opposition Dec. 5, according to City Manager

And Pebble Beach resident Janice O'Brien still maintains that a referendum to stop the project may be initiated if the Coastal Commission approves the 270-room hotel, 80-unit condominium complex and championship golf course at Spanish Bay, a mined-out sand dune area near Pacific Grove.

Mrs. O'Brien said a final decision on whether to seek a referendum will not be made until after the Coastal Commission hearing at 10 a.m. Dec. 12 in San Francisco. The Monterey County Board of Supervisors approved the project earlier this month.

Opponents of the project are concerned about the impact the project will have on traffic in the area.

Pebble Beach Co. has proposed to open another traffic light-controlled entrance off Highway 68 near Haul Road. The company also plans to allow only eastbound traffic out of the forest by means of a right hand turn only lane at the proposed Highway 68 gate. This provision would keep many cars from entering Pacific Grove, the company says.

But Councilman David Maradei is unconvinced that any of the measures taken by Pebble Beach Co. will protect the city of Carmel from a vehicular onslaught.

"What's really going to happen is Spanish Bay will influence the area the way the Monterey Bay Aquarium influences the area," Maradei told the Carmel Pine Cone/-Carmel Valley Outlook.

"We know that any growth and development will impact Carmel. Ninety percent of those hotel guests will come to Ocean Avenue. It's one of the major tourist spots on the Monterey Peninsula," he continued.

"It's no secret Spanish Bay will benefit business. But as far as being beneficial to residents, that remains to be proven," he Maradei also is angry at how fast the board of supervisors acted to approve the project.

"It's no secret (Supervisor) Bill Peters is trying to push Spanish Bay as quickly as possible before he leaves office.

'This project is going to be forced down the public's Maradei is not alone on the Carmel City Council in his opposition to Spanish Bay.

"Anything that's going to bring that many more people to the peninsula will have an impact on the peninsula and Carmel," Councilwoman Helen Arnold said.

"I feel very sorry for the Pacific Grove and Pebble Beach people because they'll see a severe impact," she said.

Councilman Robert Stephenson agreed: "I would support David. I'm not a supporter of Spanish Bay or any big development such as that in our area."

Mayor Charlotte Townsend added that she is "ambivalent" about the project, but especially is concerned about how much water it will need.

"In 10,000,000 years we could evolve into birds. Interested?"

Doran Associates changes hands

ONE OF the last things people think about when they think of Carmel is computers. But computers have become a way of business life in the United States and peninsula businesses are no exception.

Doran Associates Computer Services on Lincoln Street between Seventh and Eighth avenues has provided peninsula businesses with those unique advantages that computerized word processing, mailing lists, financial spreadsheets, and data files can supply.

Founded six years ago by Patricia and Ed Doran, the company will change hands on Dec. 1 to new owner Michelle Heuer who started work there three and one-half years ago as an intern from Monterey Institute for International Studies.

"Pat and Ed were ready to do something else and I loved the business so much, I took over," Mrs. Heuer said. "Through the years, Pat has trained me in every aspect of the business."

Doran Associates uses an International Multiuser Microsystem with a 48 megabyte and disk memory for its computer system." With this system, each terminal has its own user board so computer functions, with the exception of the hard disk storage, are not shared.

The 48 megabytes mean that the disk can store 40 million characters such as a single letter, number, or punctuation mark. An average word has five characters.

"This is really a specialized business service, ideally suited for the peninsula," Ms. Heuer said. "Our business philosophy is to get acquainted with the clients and understand how the business works and functions so we can tailor our services to their needs. That is one of the advantages of having a powerful system like we do."

Ms. Heuer claimed that though the bulk of the business is mailing lists, it is also the most under-utilized service Doran offers.

"A lot of people do not know what the capabilities of the computer is when it comes to making up a mailing list," she said. "In the list, a name or names can be categorized and all names within that category can be extracted on demand. An example of this might be if a non-profit organization wanted to reach just a certain zip code, section of the alphabet, or type of contributor. A list can be customized with as many categories as the client wants.

"Once the names are in, we maintain the list, which is very important. As the business grows, we can continue to add to the list. The main cost is in the input. After it is entered, it can be used to order up labels and repetitive letters. An advantage of of a computerized mailing list is that the input cost remains

The computer can lift names from the mailing list and insert them into the body of a letter as many times as the client

"For example," Mrs. Heuer explained, "on a repetitive letter we can lift 100 people out of the list if the client wants and personalize each letter so that it looks like it came right out of the typewriter. It is a big help with places like galleries, clubs, and boutiques."

"A mailing list can be a tremendous advertising for a business," she added.

Doran Associates word processing services include resumes, letters, manuscripts and financial reports.

"We keep everything in memory and someone can come back in two years to update the information," Mrs. Heuer said. "There are many authors here on the peninsula who use us for their manuscripts. We might do three to four rough drafts before we do a final copy, ready for typesetting."

"We can do financial reports with Supercale, a specialized program that does spreadsheets," Mrs. Heuer said. "A corporation may want a printout of monthly expenses after the minutes. The company gives us the information and the computer will do the calculations and print up the report with spreadsheets. A realtor may want amortization or depreciation tables. They can call us and give us the numbers involved and in an half an hour, we can have the tables done."

Mrs. Heuer said Doran Associates also can customize financial reports. Her husband Rick owns and operates his own computer consulting business, Computer Management Consultants, and will write special programs for businesses that need or want them. He also will help with clients who are ready to get a computer of their own.

Timesharing is another service Doran Associates offers which provides businesses with the company's large memory and software capabilities. With this service, a business has a terminal and printer in its own office which is hooked up to Doran's system through telephone lines.

Each user has its own "user card" so there is no computing interface with the other users and no delay on the system. The terminal does not have to be an International Microsystem but can be almost any of the many types available on the market today. The fee is based on which hours the business wishes to use the Doran system.

Doran Associates also has computer education classes in Wordstar, a word processing program; Supercalc, the financial reporting program; and D-Base II, a type of programming language for organizing information. The classes, Mrs. Heuer said, do give the client a basic understanding of how the computer works.

NEW OWNERS OF COFFEE BEANS

Escrow has closed and Ray and Hiroe Molyneaux are now the proud owners of Coffee Beans and Tea Leaves which has been on Ocean Avenue in the Court of the Golden Bough for the past 17 years. Patrons and fans of the little shop need not worry, though.

"We plan to keep everything as is," Molyneaux said.

The shop offers not only 34 varieties of tea, including Japanese green tea, but "coffee from every coffee growing country in the world" according to former owner Jeanie Koplan.

The shop carries all types of brewing accessories with an unusual assortment of hand, as well as electric, grinders. There is cappuccino and espresso equipment for those who like more exotic coffee drinks.

"I will hand-make tea cozies, any color and any syle," Mrs. Molyneaux said. "We also plan to be open later for the Christmas shoppers and will do gift wrapping."

"We have a large mail order clientele and will mail anything anywhere," she said. "We would like to expand on our mailing list."

Mr. and Mrs. Molyneaux moved to Carmel from Los Angeles where he worked as a production designer for CBS

Victorian magic

A SEVEN-foot high fully furnished Victorian doll house commissioned by "Third Street Studios" in Minnesota has been delivered to Carmel Plaza just in time for the holidays. Mounted on a heavy-duty turntable and protected by a glass enclosure, the two-story house will be on display throughout the holiday season at the main entrance to Carmel Plaza on Ocean Avenue. The house includes bedrooms, parlor, dining room, restrooms, library and kitchen. All rooms are lit and the exterior is decorated for Christmas. Over 600 hours went into hand-crafting the house. The curtains and soft goods are hand-made. All of the trees and bushes are silk flowers remade and painted. The grass is sheet moss. BUSINESS GOOD AT CENTRAL CAFE

The Central Cafe in The Crossroads opened Nov. 15 and business is good, according to owner Herb Evans.

"We served over 1,600 people in the first five days we were open," Evans said. "Our prices are very reasonable because we are aware of the young people and the senior citizens who live in the area. There are a lot of people on fixed incomes around here and the kids like to come in after the movies."

The menu ranges from "create your own omelette" to salads to crepes to full dinners. Many of the dishes are vegetarian.

"My wife Tara is the chef and she believes that what goes on the plate is what counts," Evans said.

"This is a family-run restaurant," he added. "I designed it along with my family. Our concept was a lot of sunshine and a lot of windows."

"My wife designed the kitchen and the menu. My eldest daughter Shelly is the manager and her younger sister Samantha assists."

The interior of the restaurant was finished by Tara's brothers Joli and Helmuth Morgenanth, who work out of Big Sur.

"This is a real family enterprise," Evans said.

Evans was the manager of Nepenthe in Big Sur 13 years ago, where he met his wife who was a waitress there. Beside the cafe, they own the Treadmill, a sports clothing store in The Crossroads.

SKILLICORNS TO OPEN CARMEL RESTAURANT

Sandy and Jack Skillicorn have a new restaurant in Carmel that is to open Dec. 18 in the location of the former Carmel Epicurian on the corner of Seventh Avenue and Dolores Street.

"We had a contest going for the name and so far the one that it has stayed is Carmel's Country Kitchen," Skillicorn said. "It could change, but that is what it is now."

"It will be California European country cuisine," he said. "We have Monterey County wine, Monterey County artichokes, Monterey Bay calamari and seafood, and North County Springfield mushrooms. We are trying to keep as much of it within the boundaries of this area.

"We want to keep it well priced and aimed toward the local residents," Skillicorn said. "We have been here a long time and want to gear our restaurants to the residents."

The Skillicorns own A Little Pizza Heaven on Dolores and Skillicorn and Skillicorn Business and Tax Service on Monte Verde Street and Seventh Avenue.

Festival of Trees coming

INVITATIONS have been mailed for an opening night party to celebrate the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art Festival of Trees. The party will be from 6 to 8:30 p.m. in the Monterey County Fairgrounds Exposition Hall.

Champagne and hors d'oeuvres will be served throughout

"Christmas is an Enchanted Forest" is the theme of this year's Festival of Trees, Dec. 6-9 at the county fairgrounds.

This year the colorful festival will feature 30 trees, which were commissioned for decoration in early 1984. The decorated trees will remain on display from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Dec. 6-8 and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Dec. 9.

The trees will be distributed Monday, Dec. 10, to the Monterey Peninsula business and professional organizations that commissioned them.

Festival attractions — in addition to the trees — will include a country store where gourmet delights from pepper jelly to popover aprons can be purchased. A museum shop selling gifts from around the world and a boutique of hand-crafted Christmas items will be open daily, and complimentary refreshments will be served each day.

Museum of Art volunteers have worked throughout the year to organize the event and to make the tree ornaments. Local artists also participated by donating original miniature works of art which were displayed in the museum Oct. 20 to Nov. 25 before they were moved to the fairgrounds for the festival.

Admission to the festival will be $2.50 for adults and 50 cents for children 12 or younger accompanied by an adult.

"NIGHT WITH NEPTUNE" BENEFITS CAL REP

An elegant black-tie dinner/dance to benefit California Repertory Theatre is planned at 7 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 1, at the Monterey Bay Aquarium.

Dubbed "A Night with Neptune," the event will feature a gourmet dinner with fine wines and champagne from the Monterey Vineyard, music by Palo Alto Jazz Ensemble, and "An Evening with Gregorio," a noted impressionistic painter.

The entire Monterey Bay Aquarium will be opened strictly to guests, whose ticket of admission is $100 per couple or $50 per person. Throughout the aquarium, a one-man showing of the works of Gregorio will be featured.

Dinner includes wines, appetizers, filet mignon, artichoke hearts and watercress. Door prizes to be given away include a painting, "Bay of Monterey" by Gregorio; an Oriental rug; a polo club membership; a two-day luxury yacht charter in Hawaii; original woodcarvings by Hawaiian artist Charles Nelson; and two season tickets to Cal Rep for opening night performances.

Gregorio is a native of Portugal and a recent arrival on the Monterey Peninsula. He has won numerous awards for his work, and his paintings hang in permanent museum collections in Portugal.

SCRAMP AWARDS BANQUET IN C.V.

The Sports Car Racing Association of the Monterey Peninsula (SCRAMP) will have made contributions totaling nearly $500,000 by the time it wraps up its 27th season Nov. 29 with its annual awards banquet at Rancho Canada Golf Club in Carmel Valley.

The distribution of checks, to more than 40 area charity and civic organizations that assist the 24-person board of directors of SCRAMP in staging the five major motor sports events at Laguna Seca Raceway each year, will amount to almost $200,000.

The SCRAMP board also has voted to divide a check for $15,000 between the United Way campaigns of the Monterey Peninsula and Salinas. This is the second year for such a donation, and in 1983 it was the largest single non-corporate contribution.

At the same time, SCRAMP's payments to the Monterey County Department of Parks, in the form of rents, fees, track advertising and other on-track activities, have amounted to Continued on page 23

With Alzheimer's disease in the news almost every day, it's sometimes hard to separate the facts from myths and hypotheses concerning the condition which, until only 20 years ago, was regarded as incurable "senility." The fact is that about a million people over 65, roughly one in 20, have developed Alzheimer's. According to physicians at Harvard Medical School, the disease can be inherited. Alzheimer's is marked by a mysterious tangle of filaments in the cortex of the brain, that part responsible for intellectual functions. Trustees consider offers on land

By MICHAEL GARDNER

AFTER THREE years of futile attempts to sell the 20-acre Scarlett Road site, the Carmel school board Nov. 26 learned of two firm offers for a land swap and another pair of possible purchase proposals.

Now trustees are in such a dilemma over which direction to take that the matter probably will be postponed until January to give them a chance to study each offer thoroughly.

The Scarlett Road site is on the south side of Carmel Valley Road about six miles east of Highway 1. The property is listed at $650,000, but the Carmel Unified School District appears willing to settle for $600,000.

Currently the site is leased to Zobel Investments Inc. as a tree-farming operation.

The 4 p.m. Nov. 26 special session was convened to discuss a potential land trade for some Pebble Beach property. But by the time the meeting was completed, there was word of three other offers.

The offers the district has under consideration are:

• A swap with Alan and Rita Shugart of Pebble Beach. The district would trade its Scarlett Road site for about two acres on Padre Lane in Pebble Beach. The site is considered more "saleable" than the Carmel Valley land.

• Another trade, this one proposed Nov. 26 by Eric Scarlett, who 20 years ago owned five acres of the 20-acre property. Scarlett said he and his aunt were threatened with condemnation proceedings more than two decades ago if the family did not sell the site to the school district.

Scarlett told trustees he has built three studio houses on three acres on Scarlett Road, which were to be sold for $175,000 each so he could buy back the original 20-acres.

Each one-acre parcel has room for a large main residence and the studios could be converted to guest cottages, Scarlett said.

Scarlett explained that he did not approach the district about a land swap earlier because

ERIC SCARLETT would like to re-acquire the 20-acres he and his aunt sold to the Carmel Unified School Distrit 20 years ago and has offered to swap three homes for the surplus property. The district suddenly is he did not learn that it is legal until he read about the Shugart proposal.

• Bob Zobel of Zobel Investments Inc. has expressed an iterest in buying the property. However, he told realtor Skip Marquard that he cannot arrange an offer until after the busy holiday season.

Marquard also alluded to another possible offer to buy the site contingent on county approval of the project proposed for the property. However, Marquard said he could not reveal the details until a firm offer is made.

only topic of discussion Monday.

After the 4 p.m. real estate session, trustees spent another hour talking about the search for a new superintendent. And after a 30-minute dinner break, the board reconven-swamped with offers for the Scarlett Road site, which is up for sale for $650,000. Above is a photograph provided by Scarlett that depicts Carmel Valley looking east from the Scarlett Road site in the 1940s.

ed at Tularcitos School in Carmel Valley for its regularly scheduled meeting.

Trustees have hired consultant Elaine Boyce to guide the nationwide search for a superintendent to replace William Rand, who resigned Oct. 8. Director of Instruction Rich Hawkins is the interim superintendent.

Ms. Boyce met with trustees and the community again on Monday to discuss development of a recruitment brochure, the interview process, and when a new superintendent could start.

Trustees decided to advertise the salary for a superintendent at $50,000 annually as part of a multi-year contract, but subject to HE surplus property issue was not the negotiation. Trustees also agreed on language for the recruitment brochure.

The board asked Hawkins to report Dec. 10 about a final schedule for recruitment and the specific costs of the consultant.

Trustees have agreed to pay Boyce's firm up to about $9,000 plus expenses. However, several parents have questioned whether those "expenses" could dramatically increase the cost.

Ms. Boyce explained that "expenses" would include mileage from Sacramento, hotel bills, mailing and some telephone costs. "I'll be eating at Season's - not the Hawkins was asked to prepare a "cap" figure for those expenses so the final cost will not come as a surprise to the board and the community.

Hilton," she said.

Ms. Boyce also provided a tentative schedule for the recruitment process.

Under the tentative schedule, the deadline for applications would be March 15, 1985.

A citizen committee of about 25 would meet with Ms. Boyce and work out a comprehensive description of the qualifications a superintendent should possess.

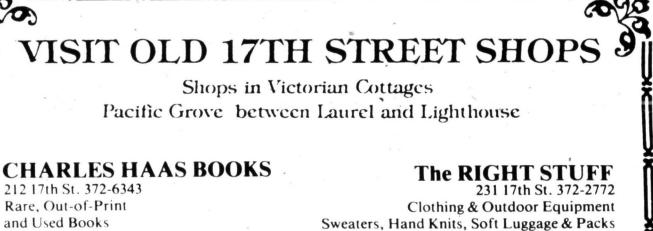

A group of three independent professionals will review the applications and suggest which job seekers should be granted personal interviews.

A SECOND committee of about eight people, including parents, staff and community members, then would interview each candidate.

The board of education would make the final selection. That selection is planned between April 30 and May 3, Ms. Boyce said.

Monterey Peninsula Water Management District directors will meet at 3 p.m. Monday, Dec. 3 at the Seaside Library to review recommendations of the finance advisory committee on water supply project financing.

The board is expected to provide policy guidance to district staff on the test of an urgency ordinance to establish an interim water supply augmentation charge. The urgency ordinance will be considered for adoption at a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 10 in the Monterey City Hall council chambers.

Cal Rep refines survival strategy

By ANNE PAPINEAU

A CHECKERED year — one marked by critical kudos and fiscal fright — will wind to a close as California Repertory Theatre opens its holiday production of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol on Saturday, Dec. 8.

And, if plans prevail, Cal Rep management hopes to produce the Dickens classic during Christmas season '85 as well.

"We're too good to go down the tubes," observed producing director Ben Benoit with the characteristic confidence he exhibited throughout 1984. "There will be a next year. We're going on this year with a sold-out theater, and every single day people put their names in the box for season tickets."

Those are 1985 season tickets.
California Repertory Theatre, housed in the American Tin Cannery building in Pacific Grove, filed for protection under federal bankruptcy laws on Sept. 17. Since then individuals, organized groups and a restructured business office have worked to keep alive this area's only full-time professional theater.

ARTS & LEISURE CLASSIFIED ADS REAL ESTATE

A major supporter from Carmel Valley who requested anonymity initiated a $50,000 challenge grant in late October.

"This has in effect doubled the value of contributions," Benoit said of the offer. "It's more bang to the buck. We're about a third of the way in matching the challenge grant. That's $16,000. There still may be angels we haven't heard about."

Cal Rep is banking on luring a few angels during "A Night with Neptune," slated Saturday, Dec. 1, at the Monterey Bay Aquarium. Co-sponsored by radio station KRML and The Monterey Vineyard, "A Night with Neptune" will feature dining, dancing, wines and door prizes.

Those prizes will include the painting "Bay of Monterey" by Gregorio, whose work will be highlighted at the gala; a $750 Oriental rug; a two-day charter of a yacht in Hawaii valued at $1,000; and other prize-worthy items.

Also on the prize list are two season tickets to all Cal Rep opening nights for 1985. The value of that gift is $315 for nine shows, but only if the beleagured company completes its season.

"If we make $10,000 from 'A Night with Neptune,' it's in effect doubled (due to the challenge grant)," Benoit pointed out. "Night with Neptune" ticket prices are $50 per person; $100 per couple. Canceled checks serve as the tax-deductible receipt for the benefit of Cal Rep.

BENOIT, formerly chairman of the board of the Mendocino Performing Arts Company, already has mapped out Cal Rep's 1985 shows and begun the search for talent to stage them.

The 1985 show schedule for California Repertory Theatre is as follows:

- Jesse and the Bandit Queen: by David Freeman previews March 28-29; opens® March 30;
- Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? by Edward Albee previews April 18-19; opens April 20;
- Private Lives: the Noel Coward comedy previews May 16-17; opens May 18;
- Spokesong: Stewart Parker's comedy/drama set in a bicycle shop previews June 27-28; opens June 29;

■ Little Murders: by Jules Feiffer previews July 18-19; opens July 20;

- The Elephant Man: by Bernard Pomerance previews Aug. 8-9; opens Aug. 10;
- The Seagull: by Anton Chekhov previews Sept. 26-27; opens Sept. 28;
- On Golden Pond: by Ernest Thompson previews Oct. 31-Nov. 1; opens Nov. 2;
- A Christmas Carol: by Charles Dickens previews Nov. 29; opens Nov. 30.

"The theater has attained enough of a reputation already that we're beginning to attract directors from outside the country," Benoit said. "We're recognized other than in our own backyard."

He said possible talent to be added to the 1985 roster includes off-Broadway director Kay Carney for The Seagull and London director Peter Craze for Private Lives.

"We're trying to attract people for the best possible productions," Benoit said. "We're going to have an invitation-only casting session in December. Casting will continue on through January and into February. We're looking for a few tremendous talents."

While its artistic house would appear to be in order, whether Cal Rep will survive financially remains in question. Benoit praised the 17-member task force, organized Nov. 9 by members of the local business community. The task force was formed to assist Cal Rep fund-raising through 1985.

"It's a pretty high-powered list of people," Benoit observed. "They've the expertise and abilities to help us out of this situation, people involved not just on a financial level but on an advice and assistance level."

Benoit said the task force includes George Greenwood, vice president and manager of the Wells Fargo Bank in Carmel; Bob Bussinger, manager of Ventana Big Sur, and real estate investor Jim Tucker of Carmel Valley.

The producing director also expressed gratitude to the many local businesses who have pledged support to this non-profit theater. Business supporters who have donated $100 to $5,000, the average gift being $250, include The Barnyard, Durney Vineyards, Bayou Cafe, First National Bank of Monterey County, Jack London's, Carmel Plaza, Chateau Julien and County Bank of Santa Cruz.

A second scheduled fund-raiser is the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary Cal Rep benefit, which coincides with the champagne opening of A Christmas Carol on Dec. 8. At that time, Cal Rep will auction a car donated by Victory Toyota of Seaside.

For additional information about benefits and season tickets, call Cal Rep, 372-0750.

'Glamorous Life'

SOME 80 students and five departments at Carmel High School combined talents for their original production, Glamorous Life, to be staged at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday, Nov. 29-30. The multi-media fashion and dance show will be presented at Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. The

Everyone invited to 'Christmas in Carmel'

A CHRISTMAS tradition of seven years' standing continues Saturday, Dec. 1 with the Christmas in Carmel celebration at Sunset Center on San Carlos Street at Ninth Avenue. With song, sweets and gift-collection for the needy, Christmas in Carmel begins at 3 p.m.

Carmel begins at 3 p.m.

The musical portion of the afternoon will last about an hour during which traditional holiday goodies will be served. Combined choruses from many of the local churches will join to present a program of Christmas music from many lands along with American carols. The annual song competition winner, "Christmas in Carmel-by-the-Sea" by Antoine DaVigo, will have its premiere performance.

Everyone is invited to join the caroling. Some of the carols from Germany, France, Spain and Italy will be sung in the original languages. The song sheet printed in this issue of the Carmel Pine Cone/-Carmel Valley Outlook includes community sing selections.

Many organizations, fraternal clubs and ethnic groups will contribute to the holiday sweets tables. Organizers of the celebration, the Carmel Cultural Commission, encourage the public to bring a favorite cookie or sweet to the center for sharing.

Part of the endeavor of that day will be cooperation with the Salvation Army who sponsors a Christmas Bureau Basket. Those who would like to share the holiday with a child or senior citizen should plan to bring a wrapped gift with the age for a child or designated for a senior citizen on the outside.

There will be a Christmas tree in the lobby of the theater under which gifts can be left. The Christmas Bureau Basket will also accommodate canned goods.

All activities are free and open to all. For additional information about Christmas in Carmel, call 624-3996.

THE CHERRY FOUNDATION BY JANE WILGRESS

Feasting, freezer foods and fun

OUR SUPPORT group, the Friends of the Cherry Foundation, has an innovative "Bake and Bid" auction planned for Saturday, Dec. 1, to start at 12 noon in Cherry Hall.

The event will be a benefit for the Cherry Foundation and promises to be a lively affair for "bakers" and "bidders" alike.

There will be a wide variety of foods up for auction—cakes, cookies, jams, breads, quiches, desserts, pasta, casseroles for your freezer, some ethnic specialties and maybe some home brew. Names of the auctioneers are still secret, but names of the organizers are not. The auction is the project of Celia Leker of Monterey, board member, and John Martin of Carmel, president of the Friends group.

Donations can be brought any time. Because of our limited space, and because we plan to serve refreshments, a call to us at 624-7491 will be appreciated if you plan to come and bid.

I'm dreaming of a White Christmas
Just like the ones I used to know.
Where the treetops glisten

To hear sleigh bells in the snow.

I'm dreaming of a White Christmas
With every Christmas card I write.
May your days be merry and bright.
And may all your Christmases be bright.

Sequoia Quartet presents balanced musical format

UNDER THE auspices of the Chamber Music Society, the Sequoia Quartet appeared here last week in works by Haydn, Prokofiev and Debussy.

Historically, the string quartet is a relatively late development. It evolved out of baroque chamber music, especially the trio sonata, with its two soprano voices and basso continuo (bass instrument and harmony instrument).

As the sound ideal began to change, there was a demand for a stronger and more independent middle part to replace the improvised harpsichord (or lute) part. The tenor violin, viola, took over in the middle and the string quartet was born. With all four instruments in the same family, the sound was then homogeneous.

Franz Joseph Haydn, who has been called the father of many musical forms of the early 18th Century, has also been credited with the string quartet. Of course, no one person invents any one form (except opera). Nevertheless, Haydn deserves a lot of credit for taking this musical form from infancy to mastery in an astonishingly short time.

His influence on the other two giants of the form and the period - Mozart and Beethoven - was considerable, and Beethoven's late quartets represent the next milestone.

Although most of the important 19th Century composers did compose in this genre, it was less compatible to the romantic style. The 20th Century has the most important contribution since Beethoven — the six marvelous quartets of Bela Bartok. Many other 20th Century composers, of varying degrees of importance have added to the literature.

The popular California quartet, a past winner of the Naumburg Chamber Music competition, now enjoys double residency — at the California Institute of the Arts in Valencia. and at California State University in Long Beach. It also has a very active touring and recording life.

The well-balanced program demonstrated their strengths, some weakness, and their ability to handle different styles.

THE PROGRAM ranged from Haydn's Quartet, Op. 33, No. 2; through Prokofiev's first quartet, Op. 50; to Debussy's quartet, Op. 10. Thus, they went from the economy and clarity of Haydn, to the expansive melodic writing and stretched harmonies of Prokofiev, to the colorful, youthful Debussy.

The quartet's ensemble is impressive. They have been together since 1972, and the experience shows in their ability to breathe as one, and in their sensitivity to one another which is important to their excellent intonation.

Their dynamic range is vast, controlled at its extremes by cellist Martin's exuberant forte, and violinist Matsuda's lovely pianissimo, which never lose tone.

The Prokofiev and Debussy quartets were good vehicles for the Sequoia. The former provided opportunity for somewhat romantic expressiveness; the latter for a variety of techniques, dynamic control, and incisive rhythmic playing.

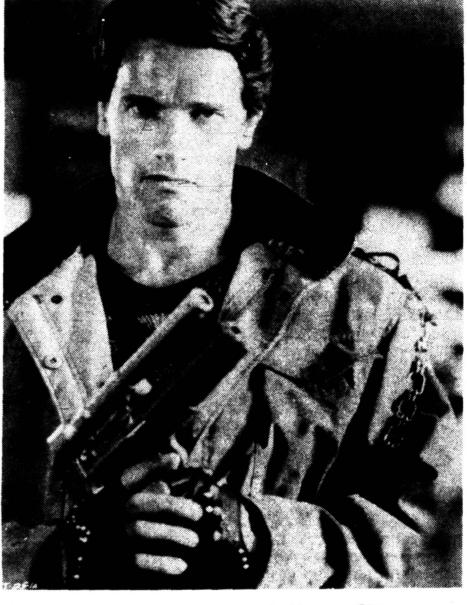

It is possible, though by no means necessary, to make the third movement of the Debussy more tragic by capitalizing on the dark side of the viola solo.

Haydn fared somewhat less well. He is difficult to play there is not much margin for error. Everything needs to be thoroughly thought through, and then played with total spontaneity. This reading lacked the definition that comes from carefully structured phrases, including chord voicing that points up the harmonic movement.

Both the articulation and the tempo seemed arbitrary, so that Haydn's multi-level rhythmic scheme was not clear. They did catch the double-barrelled humor of the finale, so distinctively Haydn.

Not only is the rondo theme funny in and of itself, the end of the movement has to leave one chuckling. Supposedly, Haydn wanted to prove that ladies always started to talk before the movement was over. He would have lost his wager

The group returned to play the finale from Haydn's Op 20, No. 2 as an encore. When a program is as well-planned and executed as this one was, I find encores unnecessary and distracting.

diagrammed position. How do you play it?

Probably your first thought is to cover the blot on your 8-point by bringing a man down from your midpoint. You would then take the one by moving up to the 2-point in Black's home board. From there you'll be able to get out if you roll any

These are good moves, and you would surely make them if you had nothing better to do. As it happens, however, an even better move is available.

Make your 5-point, moving five from your 10-point and one from your 6-point. This gives you a four-point prime and threatens to lock in the two men on your 1-point.

You, White, roll 5-1 in the Even if Black gets a six (or a 2-5 or 1-5) to hit the blot on your 8-point, he will still have two men in your home board behind a four-point prime and you will have a shot at the blot on both 8points. A further reason for making your 5-point is that you want to make sure that Black doesn't make that point.

The exhibit can be viewed at the Waterfront Gallery on Cannery Row.

Virginia Morse show captures peninsulans

By ANNE PAPINEAU

TENNIS PLAYERS, homemakers, politicians, physicians — such characters and then some are represented in the newest exhibit of paintings by Virginia Morse, scheduled to open Tuesday, Dec. 4.

Bold and for the most part large images by the Carmel artist will occupy the Waterfront Gallery on Cannery Row until Jan. 5. A cross-section of Monterey Peninsula notables and just plain folks are synthesized into a gallery-spanning family tree; the subjects' unifying thread is the colorful palette of Virginia Morse.

"Although my paintings bear a likeness to the subject — at best catch a special quality — I am primarily interested in creating paintings, not portraits," the artist explained in an interview with the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook.

"I am not a portrait painter as such. Instead, I paint friends and relatives in the tradition of Van Gogh."

The title of the show is, in fact, "People You Know," and even a cursory overview of the exhibit suggests that Mrs. Morse knows

Among the Carmel residents represented in "People You Know" are Susan Long, Dr. Charles Snorf, Richard Tevis, Linda McHarry, Carla Ramsay, Lord Barclay Ferguson, Mary Kay Higgins, Virginia Adams, Virginia Conroy, Frank Ashley, Belinda Vidor Halliday and Winston Swift Boyer.

"They're all people I know, so when I have what I want, I know it," she observed. "When I've caught some quality I want, I know it."

Mrs. Morse has painted since the 1940s. Hers is a multi-faceted life - career highlights include journalistic stints as a member of the editorial staff in New York and later Washington correspondent for Time magazine.

"I interviewed corporation chairmen and presidents of companies," she recalled. "Time was exciting. I was very young and had a tremendous amount of power. I'd call a corporate leader a fathead in print. In those days, we'd call the shots."

The artist discovered her ability to capture people with paint as well as print while she lived in Santa Fe, N.M.

"I painted some neighbors of mine — they were very colorful people. I entered it in the New Mexico Biennial and made it to everybody's surprise, including my own."

IN 1957 she met her husband, John Boit Morse, also a painter. "Since then we've lived the lives of a couple of artists."

Although she admits that, like her husband, she loves the Monterey Peninsula, "We got restless and decided we'd like to be someplace else."

Thus with the Monterey Peninsula as their base, the Morses rented homes and studios the world over.

"Mallorca, Austria, Provence, Greece, Mexico," Mrs. Morse recounted some of the places she has pursued her art. "If John had his way, I think we'd be living in Hong Kong," she said from an overstuffed chair in their Carmel living room.

Each artist expresses admiration for the work of the other.

"She has an incredible ability to capture the essence of these people," her husband declared. "There's not a single person represented who isn't a very good friend."

The "People You Know" series began with photographs taken by the artist."

"Francis Bacon said he always painted from photographs — it embarrassed him to have a model waiting for him," said Mrs. Morse, whose model studies were featured at the Pacific Grove Art Center earlier this year. "As long as I paint from a photograph I can paint when I want."

Working nearly every day in the studio that adjoins her home, Mrs. Morse strives to capture the essence of her subjects/friends in oil on canvas. Many of the larger works are 30 by 40 and 48 by 24 inches. All employ bold brush strokes and dynamic colors. The images are recognizable, but by no means photographic.

"Portrait painting is a kind of commercial art," she said. "When artists see them they understand what I'm doing and they are pleased to be the subject of a painting. People who aren't as interested in what the artist tries to do want to know if there is an accurate likeness."

In addition to writing and painting, Mrs. Morse worked in pottery for more than a decade. Making use of a home-bound kiln, she produced a series of pots on which she depicted literary figures.

"I was kind of painting on pottery," she observed. "But I got away from it; I was kind of bored with it. I kind of went nuts with portraits, though."

Local artist Gerald Wasserman, upon seeing Mrs. Morse's "folk," commented that her work reminded him of paintings by the late Alice Neel.

"But I'd never heard of her," she quipped. The artist continues to attend life classes at Sunset Center and to build upon the "People You Know" series.

"At first I hate to part with them," she explained of the large canvases. "But there comes a time when you have to part with them or move out.

"People You Know" can be viewed at the Waterfront Gallery, second floor of 225 Cannery Row, Monterey. For additional information, call 373-5060.

CHAPEL OAKS HATTON FIELDS – CARMEL

An elegant older home on Hatton Road situated on an oak-studded half-acre, backed by greenbelt. The grounds are beautifully planted and sprinklered, crisscrossed by stone paths and a lily pool.

The key room is clearly the chapel-like living room, a 30x15 chamber whose far end shapes a semi-circle and whose ceiling rises in a series of horizontal courses of planks to a height of 26 feet. Great beams cross the upper reaches, and a giant chimney breast swells out from the west wall.

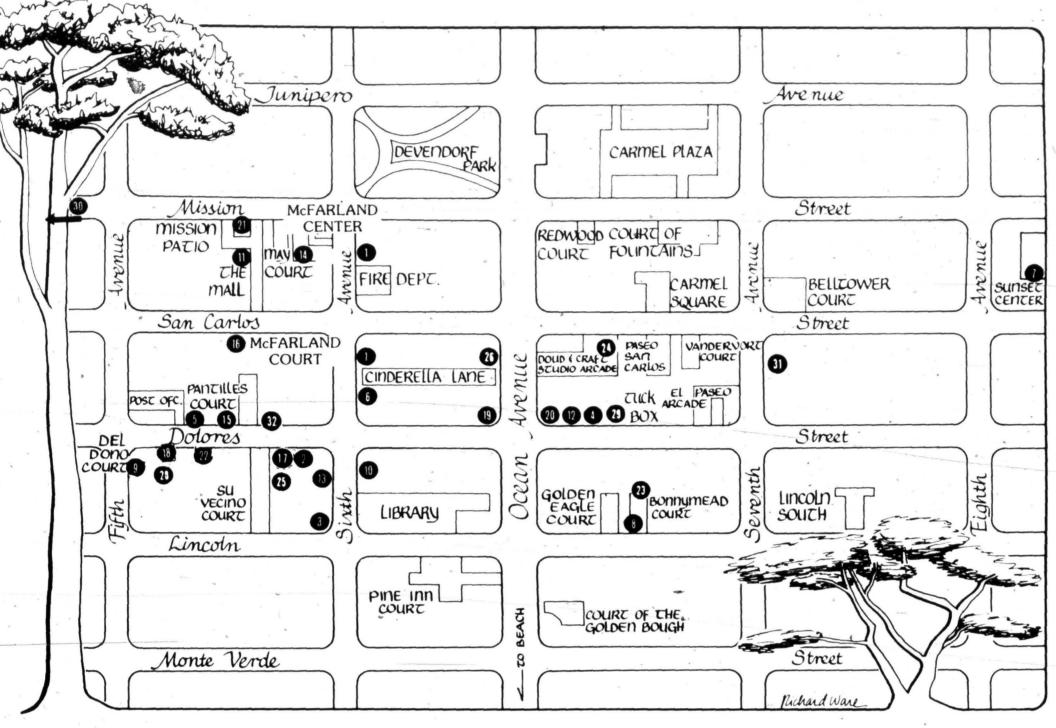

The kitchen is delightful. Just right off the entry hall, its working section (with all appliances in place) is compactly designed with new limed-oak cabinets on one side and a dormer window on the other, to a comfortable breakfast area. And beyond that is a very private deck with hot tub and lots of sun.

Everything's up to date at Chapel Oaks. It's today's home with yesterday's variety of charms. Over 3,000 sq. ft., with 4 bedrooms all of good size, and 3 baths, 2 upstairs and 1 downstairs. A definite showplace, with the dignity of maturity, convenience of complete updating, and the character of gracious family living. $795,000

Three new restaurants

The Monterey Peninsula will now have an even larger selection of places to dine out with three new restaurants now open at The Crossroads — Cafe Central, Sghetti's and Chutney's Gourmet Cafe.

Cafe Central: Herb and Tara Evans officially opened their new restaurant, Cafe Central, to the public November 15, offering service for breakfast, lunch, dinner and late supper from 8 a.m. to midnight daily. Their varied menu includes omelets, hamburgers, sandwiches, crepes, vegetarian and pasta dishes, fresh fish specials and a tempting appetizer and dessert selection.

Herb and Tara have vast experience in the restaurant business, having owned nine other restaurants back East and in the Los Angeles area. Herb Evans also owns The Treadmill Sports Boutique in The Crossroads. After a year of watching traffic at The Crossroads, Evans "gained confidence in the center for a family-oriented restaurant that was reasonably priced."

The Evans family wants to create an atmosphere at Cafe Central where people will always feel comfortable whether ordering a full meal or a snack.

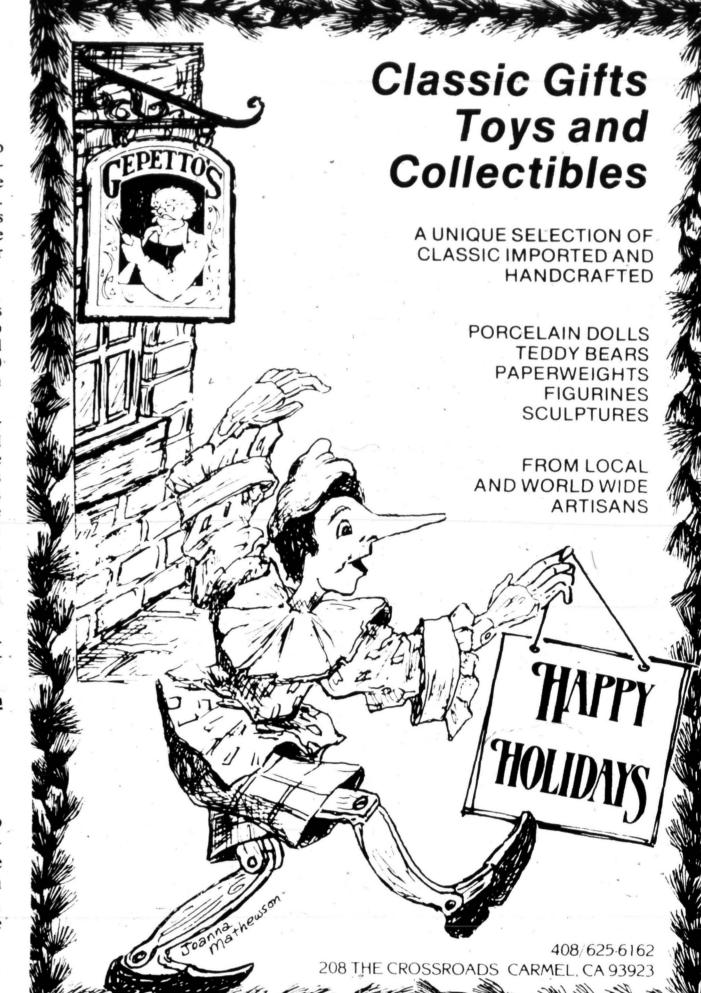

Sghetti's: Pasta lovers will surely welcome John Hunter and Ed Pilon's new restaurant — Sghetti's! Sghetti's will specialize in Italian pasta dishes at reasonable prices.

Fresh is the word Ed Pilon uses most to describe Sghetti's, with fresh pasta made daily on the premises. A choice of six homemade (and fresh) sauces will also be offered daily. Sghetti's will accommodate take-out orders and plans to offer a catering service in the future. Sghetti's is open for lunch and dinner from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Chutney's Gourmet Cafe: Chutney's Gourmet Cafe has now been open for two months in The Crossroads, serving lunch and dinner Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. and brunch and dinner on Sundays from noon until 5 p.m.

Customer response, according to owner Fuad Bahou, has been very warm and responsive, with a heavy local clientele building. Bahou also noted that the dishes with chutney and their homemade desserts have been the most popular items on the menu. Other tempting dishes served at Chutney's include homemade soups, sandwiches and quiche for lunch, and chicken, veal, beef, seafood, vegetarian and pasta entrees for dinner. The complete lunch menu is also available for dinner.

Chutney's is cozy, unpretentious, innovative and reasonable — a must on your next visit to The Crossroads.
